Geneva Calls Plan to End War "Pro-Italian"; Fuel Ban to Be Delayed

GENEVA, Dec. 12—(INS)—Leading a revolt of smaller nations protesting against an alleged Anglo-French "betrayal" of Ethiopia, Poland today balked at following the lead of Great Britain and France in attempting to settle the Italo-Ethiopian controversy.

Supported by Turkey and believed to have the moral support of several other small nations, Poland objected to and prevented discussion of the Anglo-French peace plan by the League of Nations committee of 18, meeting today.

Discusses Embargo Only

Tytus Komarnicki, Polish delegate, demanded that the 18—the "general staff" on application of sanctions against Italy—confine its discussions to the oil embargo, the original subject of the meeting.

This sudden move compelled Premier Pierre Laval of France, prime mover in the current negotiations, to decide to submit the peace plan—called definitely pro-Italian here—to the league council session already scheduled for next Tuesday.

The council meeting originally had been called to discuss the definitely minor Syrian question, but now will be confronted with the grave East African war.

It had been Laval's plan to have the "general staff" discuss the peace plan rather than further sanctions against Italy. Laval apparently will gain a point, however, in that the 18 were expected to delay application of the oil ban. Laval was understood to be planning to try to prolong the meeting.

AAA READY FOR ADVERSE RULING, WALLACE SAYS

Wallace Has Substitute Plan to Submit if Court Rules Out Taxes

CONTENTS ARE WITHHELD

Committee of Experts Behind Idea; Optimism Reigns in Offices

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(INS)—A wave of optimism spread through the AAA today as officials speculated on the content of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's substitute plan for the AAA in event the Supreme court holds it unconstitutional.

Wallace said the AAA was prepared to offer congress a substitute for the processing tax, the backbone of the crop control program, if the high court holds it invalid. He declined, however, to divulge its nature, but said it had been drawn by a "mysterious" committee.

Wallace made it plain, however, that the substitute program was not based on suggestions recently outlined in his Chicago speech, which included a general sales tax.

Wallace said he would not present the substitute plan unless congress called for it and he expects such a call if the AAA meets the same fate as the NRA.

He disclosed the "mysterious" committee was comprised of experts from the AAA and the attorney general's office. He would not reveal their names.

The secretary said the cotton control program could operate without the Bankhead act but "it would not be quite so effective."

He estimated the number of cotton growers operating under the act would drop from 90 percent to 80 percent without the Bankhead act.

Ginning Tax Used

The Bankhead act places a ginning tax on all cotton produced outside of the AAA's cotton production quota.

TWO prominent Ohio Democrats, Stephen Young (above) and Harold Mosier, congressman and lieutenant-governor respectively, are being mentioned in many sections of the state as logical candidates to oppose Governor Davey for the nomination since withdrawal of Charles Sawyer. Either Young or Mosier is pledged the support of the Cuyahoga-co organization.

SHERIFF CHECKS STORY OF WRECK; MAN IS JAILED

A parked truck, minus a driver, backed out from a curb on W. Franklin-st and struck a passing car, members of the sheriff's department were informed Wednesday night.

They investigated, found the truck hadn't moved an inch, and arrested Leroy Thompson, 43, of Route 3, for driving when intoxicated. He was fined $100 and costs by H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, Thursday morning, and his driving rights suspended for six months. Thompson was committed to jail until the account is settled.

Thompson was driving east on Franklin-st and collided with a truck owned by Dwight Harper, parked in front of Jim Davison's residence. Neither vehicle was greatly damaged.

The governor also said he would be glad to confer with Hauptmann's wife, Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, if she desired to make a personal plea for mercy for the carpenter.

Meanwhile Hauptmann was one step closer toward being sentenced to die. The clerk of the court of errors and appeals announced he was in receipt of the petition records from the United States Supreme Court.

Governor of New Jersey May Ask Lindbergh Aid

Hoffman Wants to Ask Aviator If He Is Certain "Justice Has Been Done" in Hauptmann Case

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 12—(INS)—The final say on whether or not Bruno Richard Hauptmann dies in the electric chair may rest with the father of the infant he was convicted of killing—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh—if a story making the rounds of the state capital today can be believed.

According to this report, credited to a state official, Gov. Harold Hoffman is weighing the political wisdom of conferring with Col. Lindbergh on theoretical evidence in the famous case, placed in his hands by private investigators.

Only the fear of a flat refusal from the famous aviator has prevented the executive from inviting him to the capitol for a conference, it was said.

May Ask Question

If and when the meeting occurs, it was stated, Governor Hoffman will ask Col. Lindbergh if he is completely satisfied Hauptmann's conviction wrote "finis" to the entire crime.

If Col. Lindbergh will say that he believes the Bronx carpenter alone, with no other aid, kidnapped and murdered his infant son, observers believe, nothing can prevent Hauptmann from paying the supreme penalty.

State legal experts, who aided in the prosecution of Hauptmann, expressed the conviction that Col. Lindbergh would not consent to discuss any phase of the case with Hoffman.

"As far as Col. Lindbergh is concerned," one of them said, "the case is a closed book. The guilty man has been convicted and Col. Lindbergh is convinced justice has been done."

Governor Hoffman refused to deny or confirm that he would invite Col. Lindbergh to talk with him on the basis of newly discovered evidence, but admitted he would have no objection to conferring with the aviator.

"I would welcome him if he asked for a conference," the executive said. "I have not seen him, but I certainly will if he wants to see me."

ATHENS, Dec. 12—(INS)—Shot in the chest at close range with a shotgun, an unidentified man was dumped from an automobile at the Sheltering Arms hospital here today. The driver sped away.

He was about 30 years old, five feet nine inches tall and has brown curly hair. Marks in his clothing indicated he had purchased them in Columbus.

EDITOR'S WIDOW ASKS 'FED' HELP IN MURDER CASE

Mrs. Liggett Wires Attorney General; Says Local Authorities Are Unfair

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 12—(INS)—Mrs. Edith Liggett turned to "G" men today, to avenge the assassination of her husband, Walter W. Liggett, editor and publisher of a crusading Minneapolis weekly newspaper.

The courageous widow telegraphed Attorney General Homer Cummings last night, urging that the department of justice investigate the murder of her husband, shot down by two gunmen at the rear of their home Monday evening.

In her plea to Washington Mrs. Liggett charged it would be impossible to obtain a fair or thorough investigation through state or county authorities, all hostile to the crusading editor and his vitriolic pen with which he repeatedly condemned state and county politicians as partners in a huge vice ring.

Federal Aid Last Hope

A federal investigation, the widow said, is her last hope of solving the assassination and bringing the murderers to justice.

Meanwhile, three separate investigations of the murder and the victim's charge of graft and corruption were under way today.

It was also learned that a sweeping private investigation of the alleged political-underworld alliance, financed by unnamed wealthy Minneapolis citizens, has been begun.

Thus the guns of Liggett's assassins may accomplish what his fiery and untiring pen failed to bring about—a searching investigation of his unceasing allegations that a ruthless underworld ring controls Minneapolis and Minnesota.

Mrs. Liggett, who stood shoulder to shoulder with her husband in his efforts to cleanse the city of vice, declared in a ringing voice today:

"I expect to go on until I have made the men who killed Walter pay; and the racketeers of this town who ordered or hired him killed pay; and to see that politicians who protect gangsters and racketeers and assassins are cleaned out of office."

Blumenfeld Pointed Out

Yesterday she appeared before a police lineup, dramatically pointed out Isadore Blumenfeld, alias Kid Cann, a notorious police character and partner in a liquor distributing firm, as one of the slayers of her husband.

Pointing an unshaking finger at Cann, who stood in the center of the line, she calmly declared:

"That's the man who fired the shots and killed my husband."

Cann, who had been gay and indifferent concerning his detention since a few hours after the slaying Monday, reddened, then paled, gasped:

"You don't know me. You just saw my picture in the papers."

How New Social Security Act Affects You

Provisions of Far-Reaching Law Going into Effect January 1 Are Explained

No. 1—COLLECTION OF MONEY BEGINS

By DALE COX

In the minds of millions of Americans in the last five years the yearning for security supplanted the goal of opportunity, which had been the national stimulus of this country of 150 years. With a great depression cloud of fear, uncertainty—even terror—at their backs, politicians and statesmen turned their attention to the creation of security by statute.

The result was the famous Social Security act passed by the last session of congress and signed into the law of the land by President Roosevelt on Aug. 14.

Historians some day may take that date as a turning point of real importance and significance in the evolution of the American people from a sturdy, self-reliant, individualistic pioneering clan to an older, more cautious people seeking safety or security through collective co-operation. Already many philosophers and students of government speak of the adoption of this act as indicative of the fact that America has come of age. A great and erstwhile bold people have reached back into the experience of older nations and appropriated a form of statute formulated to protect the individual, in so far as possible, from the vicissitudes of life.

Security Guaranteed?

This article, however, is not to concern itself with the philosophy of social security. It does not propose here to take up the question of the right or wrong of it. It does not presume to say whether any government can guarantee its citizens security within the common understanding of that term.

Theories and conflicting opinions aside, the fact is that the United States is embarked upon the most elaborate and far-reaching program of social security any nation ever has undertaken. The New Deal leaders who were responsible for the adoption of this legislation prefer to speak of it as legislation for economic security. They mean by that the same thing others mean when they use the term social security. For purposes of consistency, therefore, this article will refer to the whole field of security legislation as social security legislation.

A Complex Law

Suffice it to say, briefly, that the Social Security act passed in 1935 is not only one of the most significant laws passed in all American history; it is one of the most complex. It is easy to imagine this act as being more difficult of administration than all other legislation passed by the New Deal. No one as yet knows the extent of administrative difficulties and complexities. There is hardly range in the human mind to comprehend it.

But, beginning Jan. 1, every American employer of eight or more people, with a few exceptions, will begin paying a payroll tax on the wages of his employees with which to set into motion the unemployment insurance section of the social security act. Millions have talked about security for years; beginning Jan. 1 the United States government begins collecting the money with which to establish some modest degree of protection against unemployment.

Komarnicki, in unexpectedly calling upon Laval to block the Anglo-French peace machinery, also bluntly declared that Poland never had admitted that France and Great Britain had been entrusted with the task of working out the Italo-Ethiopian solution.

It was recalled Poland had objected, when it was proposed France and Britain be given a mandate for this purpose, stating only the league council was empowered to grant such a mandate.

Victor Hayek, defense attorney, said he would file an appeal to the Arizona Supreme Court within the next week but said it was exceedingly unlikely the court would reverse the decision of the jury of 12 frontiersmen who returned the guilty verdict after a short deliberation. The case will be carried to higher benches until it reaches the supreme court justices, Hayek said.

"Our plea will be a simple one—that freedom of worship guaranteed by the constitution protects these people," he said.

LONDON, Dec. 12—(INS)—Japan wants half the American and British navies scuttled.

Parity among the three major naval powers should be reached. Admiral Nagano suggested, through all-around reductions to a point below Japan's present total

"LOST" MONEY

FOR more than six years treasury officials at Washington have been wondering what became of eighty-five $10,000 bills of the old size. It was the expectation in the summer of 1929, when the paper money was changed in size, that the large notes would be exchanged. Most of them have been swapped, but "old fashioned" currency still turns up occasionally. There's plenty of room for speculation in the "disappearance" of the $10,000 notes, especially when one recalls what happened to Hauptmann as a result of the order to turn in gold certificates.

Any effort to exchange a $10,000 old bill now would attract much more attention among wise handlers of currency than the effort to get rid of the Lindbergh ransom money. Those who are accustomed to handling large bills wouldn't be much more startled by a machine gun than they would by the sight of such a note. One of the most probable results would be the assignment of treasury sleuths to learn where the bill had been and why it wasn't exchanged. These sleuths would start with the suspicion that there was some unlawful motive for keeping the bill under cover, some effort to evade a federal law either against smuggling or for tax collection.

The possibilities of ownership of the old $10,000 notes have provided much entertainment for those who were familiar with them. Many of the experts have concluded that about the best course for the present holders is to let the paper remain in vaults until death, so all that the curious may do is guess.

PIRATIC SWINDLE

THERE is a good lesson for gullible investors and would-be heirs in the news that 41 persons are being brought to trial in connection with the perennial Sir Francis Drake swindle.

The story goes that the famous British buccaneer left an estate which has reached the stupendous total of $27,000,000,000, and which is lying in English banks awaiting the establishment of legitimate claims.

Naive Americans, it appears, have

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—

Residents or large cities are not likely to obtain the farmer's point of view. Yet farmers represent nearly half the voters of the United States.

A farmer at Greenville, Ill., Howard De Boer, brings the matter to the fore in a letter to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Here are some exerts from Mr. De Boer's letter:

"How many of those who are now complaining about the corn-hog program ever wrote letters of sympathy when the farmer was selling hogs at 2 cents, corn for 10 and 15 cents and wheat for 35 and 40 cents, with his equipment worn out and no money to buy new equipment without going hopelessly into debt?"

"The farmer often works 12 to 16 hours, six days a week. I have threshed for 10 days when the temperature was never under 100 in the shade. Even now the producer receives only about 8½ cents for hogs after shipping expenses are paid. The fact that the consumer pays 25 cents per pound does not mean that the man who raises the hogs gets that. There is too much spread between producer and consumer."

"I, myself, do not believe a reduction program is the permanent solution of our trouble, but something had to be done at once to hold agriculture on its feet. Until capital, industry, labor and agriculture come to an understanding that they must take the breaks together, this nation will see troublous times."

MAY A JUDGE SPEAK?

Considerable commotion has been created in Pennsylvania as to whether judges who rule on New Deal legislation ought to make speeches on it.

This editorial in the Scranton Times—largest paper in the state outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh—brings the matter to the fore:

"Angered and resenting the 'jungle law' speech of Supreme Court Justice George W. Maxey recently before the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women, the Philadelphia Central Labor union went on record as terming it un-American in principle and a breeding of the sowing of the seeds of revolution in the ranks off the American people."

"One delegate of the C. L. U. attacked in particular Justice Maxey's declaration that efforts of the Roosevelt administration to improve conditions were against the laws of God. 'If we took Judge Maxey's interpretation of the laws of God,' said this delegate, 'we should say when we see a human being struggling in anger over its clipped claws.'

"The Philadelphia Record adds its condemnation of Justice Maxey to that of the C. L. U., declaring that Justice Maxey has promulgated an eleventh commandment: 'Thou shalt not help me another.' To this the Record adds: 'Mr. Justice Maxey assures us that the revelation comes direct from the Deity, which is somewhat startling, considering both the character of Justice Maxey and the nature of his pronouncement.' The Record declares, 'Maxey invokes justice.'

"P. S.—The Pennsylvania supreme court now has declared the state income tax unconstitutional. In view of recent vitriolic attacks on New Deal legislation, many thoughtful people believe Judge

SENATOR NORRIS WON'T RETIRE, WILL BE CANDIDATE FOR REELECTION

WASHINGTON — Senator George Norris will be a candidate for re-election next year.

Under pressure of strong pleas from the President, his Senate colleagues, and thousands of admirers in all parts of the country, the veteran Nebraska liberal has reconsidered his decision to retire from public life. A public announcement to this effect will be made by him shortly.

Since his statement some weeks ago that he would not seek another term, Norris has been deluged with letters and telegrams urging him to carry on. In Nebraska a movement was launched to put his name on the ballot despite his declaration.

Members of the Senate Progressive bloc were particularly active. Senators Wheeler and Nye, en route to the Philippines, wireless him from mid-Pacific.

While Norris has decided to seek another term, he has not as yet made up his mind on what ticket he will run.

In the past he has hewed an independent course regarding national issues and candidates, but personally he has always run as a Republican. Close friends say he no longer wants any association, even nominal, with the GOP.

On the other hand, while Norris's admiration for President Roosevelt is unchanged and he expects to support him for re-election, the Democratic party label holds no attraction.

The LaFollette brothers, Senator Bob and Governor Phil, both very close to Norris, have advised him to follow their example, cast off both old party affiliations and run as a Progressive.

Probably this is what Norris will do.

Spent over $1,350,000 to the alleged promoters of the scheme to establish inheritance rights. But, fortunately, the government at last has caught up with the schemers, and an opportunity will be afforded to explain the whole project in open court.

Sir Francis Drake, according to authoritative word from the British Isles, died a relatively poor man. He owned two small farms and a few hundred pounds in money until death, so all that the curious may do is guess.

Such discouraging facts should dim the ardor of all innocent investors who are prone to fall for the glittering tales of the high-pressure gentry.

MURDER UPSTAIRS

BY ADAM BLISS

READ THIS FIRST:

Lieutenant Kirk Larrabee is investigating the murder of Andrew Darien, a middle-aged bachelor who was stabbed to death with a carving knife as he slept in the boarding house of Alice Penny. Larrabee questions Alice in detail about the seven other boarders as well as Delta Randall, the maid who reported the missing knife the evening before the murder. He learns that Darien was generally disliked and that he possessed a small fortune. Alice tells Grace, her cook, to keep a close eye on the remaining knives in the kitchen. The detective questions Alice again. Alice is amazed when Larrabee tells her she will inherit $200,000 through Darien's will.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 16

I KNEW THAT we couldn't do anything without being watched. Sergeant Burke had been coming in and out of the kitchen all afternoon and stationed outside the back door there was still another officer. We were being watched, all of us. We had been watched all day long.

"I'm sort of unstrung—Mrs. Penny," said Conrad Withers. "I didn't sleep a wink last night, and then this morning, I didn't tell Larrabee, because I couldn't. Couldn't." He shuddered, and seemed to move like a small boy than a grown man. His handkerchief again went to his forehead where beads of perspiration had broken out anew. "I couldn't tell him." His voice sank to a whisper.

"I certainly wouldn't, Mr. Withers," I assured him, and I was speaking the truth.

"Thanks, Mrs. Penny. It's a relief to know that someone believes in you. I thought I could count on you. Well, last night, when I came in, I went right upstairs. I told Larrabee that, and I also told him that I remained awake the entire night. Didn't get any sleep. I told him that I didn't hear one thing all night long, except you and someone else—Miss Cambridge it must have been—come upstairs, shortly after I was in bed. I think it was Miss Cambridge because I heard her close."

"I nodded. It was Miss Cambridge."

"But that isn't the worst, Mrs. Penny. Far from the worst, I was worried all night, that's why I couldn't sleep. I can't tell you what I was worried about because that only concerns me. Just after 6:30 this morning, I decided to go down to see Darien, thinking he might be able to help me out. My—er—troubles were money troubles, and I thought he might—er—be able to give me a loan. Well, I went down the back stairs to the second floor, and then along the corridor to his door, which was open a crack. I knocked softly because I didn't want to awaken anyone else, and I thought I heard him tell me to come in. I was sure of it. I could swear that I heard a voice say come in and I was not usually mistaken about things like that. I've good ears. Mrs. Penny, even if I am near-sighted." He took off his glasses and polished them carefully with his shaking fingers. Once they nearly fell from his hands and I held my breath while he fumbled with them.

"I wasn't wearing my glasses this morning—I'd forgotten them in my sudden decision to go downstairs and see Darien. I wasn't dressed either. I was wearing only my pajamas and bathrobe. Well, I opened the door and went in. Without my glasses, everything is blurred, unless I'm pretty close to an object. Darien was lying in bed, so I went up to the bed, and it was only when I got to it that I saw—the carving knife, the blood."

"I knew he was dead, I tell you, and he had been dead for hours, but who's going to believe that I didn't put the carving knife into him?" I can't tell you what I was like when I found Darien dead, damning my cowardice. I couldn't eat any breakfast—I guess you noticed that. And I didn't tell Larrabee about going into Darien's room, I couldn't bring myself to do it. Cowardice again, but I had to tell somebody, so I came up to you." He seemed physically exhausted as he leaned back in the rocker.

"I suppose so. I've racked my brains trying to place the voice, but I can't. When it spoke those two words, I naturally supposed the speaker was Darien. But I'm not going to tell Larrabee yet. You see what I'm afraid of—I forgot about fingerprints, and when I left the room, and closed the door, I went immediately away, forgetting that I was leaving all kinds of fingerprints behind me. My fingerprints are on both the inside and the outside of the door and the bed rail, Mrs. Penny. I touched that, too. I thought about it when I got upstairs and into my room, but it was too late then to go back. People were getting up around the house by then."

"You didn't meet anyone when you came up the back stairs, go into the bathroom, return to my bedroom and look at my clock."

"Well, why should the murderer stay in Mr. Darien's room so long after his work was done? Wouldn't you think he'd leave at once?"

"I should think he would. I mean, if I were going to murder anyone, mind you I never have, but if I were going to do it, I'd get it done and get out, pronto!"

"Then, there is the person who bade you enter that room couldn't have been the murderer, Mr. Withers. He was someone else. A man's voice?"

"I suppose so. I've racked my brains trying to place the voice, but I can't. When it spoke those two words, I naturally supposed the speaker was Darien. But I'm not going to tell Larrabee yet. You see what I'm afraid of—I forgot about fingerprints, and when I left the room, and closed the door, I went immediately away, forgetting that I was leaving all kinds of fingerprints behind me. GOVERNOR'S SON
ON FIVE COMING
HERE FRIDAY EVE

Youth is Sub; Three of Last Year's Veterans Have Spots in Lineup

A veteran aggregation of cagers big, fast and experienced, represents Columbus Academy, coming here Friday evening to combat Coach Jack Landrum's Red and Black varsity on the C. A. C. court.

Academy is led by Carmichael, splendid forward, who caged 11 points in Bill Hunt's team's 28-16 victory over Holy Family Tuesday afternoon. This boy is a flash. He played last year in Academy's 21-14 victory over the Tigers.

Others appearing against the local quintet who saw service last year include Draudt, brother of Millard Draudt, classmate of Foster Bales at Lake Forest and Princeton, at center, and Hoffmann at guard.

Davey's Son, Too.

Governor Martin L. Davey's son, Martin Jr., is substitute member of the team. He played quarterback on the football team.

Academy has a strong outfit but will meet another fast aggregation in the Tigers. Melson, Jenkins and Andrews are set at three positions. Whether Styers starts depends on how much he has shown in practice this week. It will be either Henry or Freiley at a guard with the former getting the call if he is not working. He adds a lot to the Tigers offensively and defensively.

The reserve teams of the two schools will meet in the preliminaries.

Thornton, former Denison U. athlete, will be the referee.

The probable lineups:

Circleville	Academy
Styers	F. Carmichael
Andrews	F. Fraas
Melson	C. Draudt
Jenkins	G. Hoffman
Freiley	G. Winger

Time of preliminary: 7:30.

GEORGE NICHOLS WINS

AKRON, Dec. 12—(INS)—George Nichols, of Buffalo, N. Y., former holder of the light heavyweight championship of the National Boxing association, added another victory to his list today.

Nichols scored knockout over Mickey Dugan, of Cleveland, in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-rounders on a policeman's benefit show here last night. In the eight-round semi-final, George Mull, Akron lightweight, won a decision over Oscar Schmeiling, of Cleveland.

Break for Columbus

Election of Red Trautman to presidency of the American association leaves the Red Birds without a president and means that Columbus will be given a real break in matters concerning the horse in the race—Headquarters of the association will be transferred to Columbus and a new president named at the earliest possible moment ***

Cleveland Gets Allen

A few of the deals on fire and completed at Chicago:

Johnny Allen from New York to Cleveland for Monte Pearson and Steve Sundra—A New York advantage because Allen is plenty tough to get along with—

Purchase of Eddie Montague, veteran infielder by Columbus from Montreal—He is probably like Frank Sigafoos, never donning a Red Bird uniform—

RUMORS—Cubs to get Curt Davis from Philadelphia for Klein plus $25,000; Cubs to buy Lefty Brandt from Braves—

White Sox to buy Sam West from St. Louis—

Wally Berger, one of best outfielders in National loop, to go on the block to the biggest bidder ***

BROOKLYN AND BOSTON TRADE

Lopez, Benge, Cuccinello,
Reis Go for Brandt, Moore

CHICAGO, Dec. 12—(INS)—The Boston Braves traded Pitcher Ed Brandt and Randy Moore, outfielder, to the Brooklyn club, another National League club, in exchange for four players. The four released by Brooklyn to Boston were Al Lopez, Ray Benge, Tony Cuccinello and Bobby Reis, infielders.

There was no cash involved in the trade, it was announced.

The deal brought forth considerable surprise at the national and American league meeting here.

Lopez was the Dodgers' star catcher and Benge a consistent pitcher. Cuccinello is a veteran player.

Brandt was one of the best pitchers ever developed by the Braves.

STATE TO START ITS CAGE SEASON IN TILT TONIGHT

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12—(INS)—Helping to offset the power of the Red Sox acquired in the purchase of Jimmy Foxx and Roger Cramer from the Athletics, the Tigers' purchase of Al Simmons, above, from the Chicago White Sox for $35,000, is calculated to give the world champions new strength at the plate.

Both fighters will rest today, having tapered off in light workouts yesterday. Louis will leave Pompton Lakes by motor about noon tomorrow, and Uzudun will depart from Orangeburg, where he has been working out, about the same time.

MACK SILENT ON SALE, RETENTION OF HIGGINS

CHICAGO, Dec. 12—(INS)—

Being somewhat confused as to whether the Philadelphia Athletics were using the Buy Lopez system or the 6-2-2 defense next fall, I asked Connie Mack just before the finale of the annual major league meetings today whether he was selling or had sold Frank Higgins, one of a few surviving assets. I thought his reply was significant.

"I don't care to answer that," he said quietly, the implication, it seemed to me, being a little pointed. It indicated that, with Jimmy Foxx and Johnny Marcum already gone to Boston and Roger Cramer and Eric Mc Nair apparently soon to go, there is presently to be nobody left at Shibe park but Mr. Mack and the mortgage.

I don't know where Higgins could possibly go, if he must, but a fair guess might be Detroit. All I care to add is that it won't be the New York Yankees, on the solemn and slightly aggrieved word of Edward G. Barrow, the business manager.

SURPRISE TO RANCHERS

GUINNISON, Colo.—Ranchers living in the mountain country 16 miles east of here pinched themselves to see if they were dreaming. Swinging his trunk contentedly in the frosty mountain air was a huge elephant. Beside him trotted a striped zebra. After satisfying themselves that they were in the wilds of Gunnison county, and not in far-off Ethiopia or India, they rounded up the animals and learned the pachyderm and his striped companion had escaped when a circus truck had overturned on a mountain highway.

Ashville and Scioto Meet In Big Game

Commercial Point Boys Hope

Unbeaten Team

One of the big games of the current county cage season is scheduled this evening when Ashville and Scioto-twp tangle on the former court.

The girls of the two schools will also meet in a game that is a "natural." Usually the Ashville-Scioto girls game has a bearing on a championship but this year both are defeated.

The Ashville boys have yet to taste the bitter morsels of a beaten while Scioto has been dropped, in a close game by Muhlenberg-twp. The Commercial Point lads, however, are capable of knocking off almost anyone just as they did New Holland in the county tournament last year.

The starting lineups will probably be:

ODDS FOR LOUIS ARE 2 1/2 TO 1 THAT JOE LAND KAYO

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(INS)—The box-office magic of Joe Louis' name has practically assured a sell-out house at Madison Square garden tomorrow night, when the Brown Bomber meets Paulino Uzudun, according to Mike Jacobs, who is promoting the fight.

A capacity crowd would fill the garden for the first time for a professional bout since Primo Carnera fought Ernie Schaaf there early in 1933.

Odds of about 5 to 1 are being quoted for the Detroit fighter to win, and 2 1/2 to 1 the basque wood-chopper won't last the route—15 rounds.

Though everyone else connected with the fight game seems to think it's only a question of "how long will Paulino last," the Spaniard himself has no such idea. He points out that he didn't come all the way from Spain to take a licking. On the contrary, he will, he says, take keen delight in demonstrating how easy it is for an old veteran like himself to put the Detroit upstart in his place.

In the Louis camp at Pompton Lakes, N. J., every one is certain the young negro will knock the basque out in short order. Jack Blackburn, Louis' trainer, can hardly wait to see the durable Spaniard on the floor, a sight which fight followers have yet to see.

Both fighters will rest today, having tapered off in light workouts yesterday. Louis will leave Pompton Lakes by motor about noon tomorrow, and Uzudun will depart from Orangeburg, where he has been working out, about the same time.

TWO DUELS IN A DAY

SZOMBATHELRY, Hungary—Dr. John Piplich, 48, lawyer, fought two duels in a day, one with a sword and one with a pistol, with men whom he challenged for alleged insulting remarks about his wife. In the morning he fought with his sword against Dr. J. Velich, whom he left with dangerous wounds on the head and an arm almost cut off. He had a hasty lunch and then dashed to a little forest outside the town where he had a pistol duel with E. Kirchknopf, an engineer. Neither was injured.

Both fighters will rest today, having tapered off in light workouts yesterday. Louis will leave Pompton Lakes by motor about noon tomorrow, and Uzudun will depart from Orangeburg, where he has been working out, about the same time.

AGENT REPORTS FARM BUREAU ACTIVITY

11,108 PERSONAL CALLS RECORDED AT LOCAL OFFICE

Over 20,000 Contacts Made During Year; 475 Members of Organization

More than 20,000 contacts with Pickaway countians were made during the year ending Dec. 1 by the Farm Bureau organization, according to the annual report of F. K. Blair, county extension agent.

The report includes visits made through parent-teachers, farmers' institutes, farm organization meetings and other groups that took part in the extension program.

495 Visits on Farms

Personal calls made at the headquarters of the county agent totaled 11,108, telephone calls, 2,022. The county agent made 495 farm visits and 24 achievement programs were held with an attendance of 2,022. Two hundred and sixty-two other meetings with a total attendance of 5,877 persons were held by the agent. Leaders conducted more than 300 meetings with an attendance of approximately 3,000. Two hundred and fifty-six leaders assisted in carrying out the program.

The schedules were planned in January and 10 major projects were selected to receive special attention. These included the AAA organizations and cooperatives, 4-H club work, institutes, poultry, dairy, livestock, crop, soil and fertilizer and vegetable gardens.

475 Are Members

In the organization branch the report shows a membership of 475 persons in the Farm Bureau. An active educational program is conducted among the members aiding in better livestock production, crop rotation and soil improvement. Commodities such as feeds, fertilizers, insurance, livestock and other farm commodities are handled through the Service co.

The total volume of business handled through the organization including its livestock, grain and other services amounted to $755,597.19, the report reveals.

Under the AAA program $427,692 has been paid to contract signers in Pickaway-co during 1935. This amount included delayed payments on the 1935 contracts. About 1,700 contract signers were involved in these payments. Corn and hog contracts were signed by 782 producers. The contracts represented a total of 40,000 acres of land and 63,317 head of hogs. The total acres retired from production was 7,502 and the hog reduction 6,332 head.

The 830 wheat contracts were still in force from the 1933 signup involving 39,000 acres of land with a reduction of 4,000 acres. Sixty leaders aided in the administration and supervision of the county AAA program.

Aided by Council

The 4-H club program is under the direction of Miss Mary Shortridge, club leader, and Mr. Blair. The work was carried on in conjunction with the 4-H club council, composed of five club leaders and two club officers. Thirty-eight leader and assistants organized clubs including 159 boys and 286 girls. Twenty-five exhibits were entered in the Ohio State fair and 350 children took part in Pumpkin Show displays.

Statistics on the Baby Beef show profits ranging from $9 to $32 were realized on the calves fed and sold by members.

The poultry extension program is conducted through a group of 50 producers and two county-wide meetings are held each year for the discussion of poultry practices.

One of the most interesting of the reports is that of the Pickaway-co Livestock Assn. This organization shipped 11,452,000 pounds of livestock during the year, representing a total value of $441,913. Twenty-six decks of feeder cattle were distributed to producers of the county.

Many Soil Samples

More than 50 samples of soil were tested for Pickaway-co farmers by the soils laboratory at Ohio State university. Farmers bought 811 tons of fertilizer through the Farm Bureau Service company.

The lengthy report also contains crop information and numerous other brief outlines of other activities of the organization.

MUSHROOMS IN SNOW

MUNICH — Harvesting their mushrooms in the middle of a fall snow was the unique experience of peasants of Furth, (Central Bavaria) this year. The two-inch snowy blanket caused no injuries to the mushrooms. In fact this year's bumper crop is the best in a decade, and wagon-loads of the mushrooms are waiting freightage at the Furth railway station, perfectly preserved by their unprecedented covering of icy particles.

New Social Security Act

Explanation of Act Effective January 1
No. 2—OLD AGE PENSIONS

By DALE COX

THE FIRST question arising in most people's minds about the new social security program is the identity of the people who will pay for it.

You and I, everyone, will help pay the cost of the social security offered by this government to its people under the social security act.

What then are the important facts about the Social Security act? How does it affect each of us? What does it offer? What is it to cost us? How are the benefits to be paid? How soon does it begin to offer us security?

The Social Security act is divided into three sections, and to understand it properly it is well to study each section separately.

Federal Aid

The first section deals with immediate aid to be given by the federal government to the various states now attempting to aid their own citizens through old age pensions, unemployment insurance, child health work and other forms of public welfare. This aid the government offers to give immediately, in order to provide something for the people now in need pending such time as the other sections of the act shall begin to operate.

The outstanding feature of this section of the act is the offer of the federal government to match dollar for dollar, all the money paid out by the various states in old age pensions to their citizens. For the current fiscal year $49,000,000 was appropriated by the federal government to be allotted to the states having old age pension laws meeting the qualifications set up by the act.

Laws Unequal

About 28 states now have old age pension laws, some of them good, others poor, bad or indifferent. Inasmuch as no payments will be made to the aged under the permanent federal social security program until the year 1942, the only aid the aged people will get prior to 1942 will be that given them by the various states, receiving up to 50 per cent of their funds from the federal grant.

The Social Security act provides, however, that the federal government in no case will contribute more than $15 per month to any individual as an old age pension.

in any state. Since the state would contribute a like amount, the maximum for any elderly person under the first section (providing temporary old age pensions) of the

DEBATE GROWING OVER CLEMENCY FOR CRIMINAL, 28

CLEVELAND — Should Cleveland's notorious "smoked glasses bandit," who some years ago terrorized this city with a long series of crimes, be granted executive clemency, or should he be compelled to serve out at least this minimum sentence in Ohio Penitentiary?

This is a question being considered today by many prominent Ohioans, including Gov. Martin L. Davey and other state officials, as well as persons of high official capacities, as the result of a campaign being directed by the young bandit, now Convict No. 57,419 in the state prison, from behind the prison walls.

Association Opposed

Vigorously opposing executive clemency is the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice. So important does this organization consider the convict's case that its recent monthly report, issued under the direction of Leona Marie Esch, operating director, is devoted entirely to this single subject.

The convict is Joseph (Specs) Russell, alias Russo, alias Roselli, sentenced by a Cleveland judge in 1927 to serve a term of 55 years on two charges of robbery and one charge of housebreaking and larceny. This sentence, however, has been reduced by provisions of the Ackerman Indeterminate Law and the Gillen Good Conduct Law.

As a result, Russell will be eligible for parole after serving 13½ years, or one-fourth the judicial minimum sentence. Russell has been in the penitentiary more than eight years to date. The Ackerman Law nullified 34 years of the sentence, and the Gillen Law provided a further deduction of 7½ years.

The association's report on the Russell case gives its complete history, going back as far as his birth in Curwensville, Pa., May 17, 1907, the son of immigrant Italians.

Postal officials have ruled that the words "Merry Christmas" on a post-card will necessitate first class postage. This may force Santa Claus to join one of the anti-tax leagues.

The federal government will match dollar for dollar up to $15 per month paid out by the various states in old age pensions.

Social Security act is $30 per month.

The modesty of that figure amuses the adherents of the Townsend old age pension plan, which advocates the payment of $200 per month to all people over 65 years of age. Consequently, a large group of old people seeking old age pensions are anything but pleased over the outlook of receiving a paity $1 per day.

Effectiveness Restricted

Furthermore, the effectiveness of this first section of the Social Security act has been definitely limited by the fact that many states having old age pension acts cannot qualify for the federal aid. The Social Security act lays down a very definite set of requirements which all state old age pension laws must meet before those states can receive the maximum of $15 per month from the federal government for each old age pensioner.

NATION WARNED OF SHORTAGE OF NEEDS FOR WAR

U. S. Would Need Substitutes for 10 Essentials in Case of Blockade

NEW YORK — If a strangling war should strike the United States, blocking the nation's ports, the country would lack ten essential war materials, warning was given in a report to the American Chemical Society.

These materials were listed by H. A. Kuhn, executive officer of the Chicago Chemical Welfare Procurement District, as antimony, chromium, manganese, mercury, mica, nickel, rubber, tin, tungsten and wool.

In the emergency of a blockade, Kuhn said after an exhaustive survey of preparedness needs, chemists would have to develop new alloys and suitable substitutes for rubber, wool and other indispensable commodities.

"Due to the small size of our peace time army and lack of war reserves, it would be necessary to mobilize our industry for war before we could mobilize our manpower," he said.

"Although we are probably more self-sufficient in regard to raw materials needed by industry than any other nation, we still would lack an adequate supply of essential items in the event of a blockade of our shores.

"In peace time we import still other items which are needed in war. Among these are camphor, coconut shells, coffee, hides, iodine, jute, malay fiber, nux vomica, opium, shellac, silk, sisal and sugar.

"Although we have substitutes for some of these items, important for civilian and military use, getting an adequate supply of them will be primarily the job of the chemist and of the chemical industry.

"Such developments as synthetic camphor, rubber, benzol, naphthalene, ethyl alcohol, methanol, phenol, improved rayon, a domestic supply of iodine, a non-mercurial fulminate, and new alloys have added to our national defense.

PARIS — Paris has given a new name to an old drink. The Italo-Abyssinian campaign is responsible for it. Black coffee and rum, formerly popularly known in Paris cafes as "black petrol," is now called a "Negus".

Accident, She Says

FUTURE OF AAA SURE IF LEFT TO FARM VOTE

Results of various referenda that have been taken to decide the attitude of farmers toward continued agricultural adjustment leave no doubt concerning the overwhelming desire for the continuation of the program, according to V. R. Wertz, writing in the December issue of the Ohio Farm Bureau News.

Mr. Wertz, who is professor of Rural Economics at the Ohio State university, pointed out that in the national wheat referendum, 87 per cent of the votes cast were in favor of continuing the program. 86 per cent of the corn-hog vote favored continuation, 94 per cent of the cigar leaf tobacco vote was in the affirmative, and 89 per cent of those voting on the cotton referendum were in favor of continuation.

"It is impossible for any one to say just why farmers have voted so strongly to continue the AAA program," said Professor Wertz, "but it is probable that the two dominant reasons were: First, self-interest, the thought on the part of the voter that he would be able to make more money under an adjustment program than under the old "let-alone" system; and second, a firmer conviction than ever before that American agriculture faces broad economic problems which cannot be solved successfully by each of six million farmers acting independently of each other."

LOST EATING BET

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Arthur Campbell had to pay for five quarts of ice cream as well as a $5 wager because he overestimated his own ability. Having won the malted milk drinking championship of the University of Utah campus, Campbell bet $5 he could eat six quarts of ice cream. During the fifth quart, he paled suddenly and fled.

TO HEALTH OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: The task you have faced this fall in combating disease, especially diphtheria, is a difficult one and has demanded much time, energy and risk to yourselves and your families. You have succeeded in putting down the threat of epidemic every time one has threatened. I wish it were in my power to force parents and guardians of persons who show symptoms of disease to report the cases immediately to their family physicians so they can be cared for as early as possible.

They watch every vote you register, and if it is as they think it should be they will tell you; if you ol-lot contrary to their belief they also tell you. You have been on the job and always in the interest of the persons who sent you to the state house.

TO STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT

GENTLEMEN: How much longer are the two snags, called Twin Elms, at South Bloomfield to be left in the center of Route 23, endangering lives? The trees have taken their toll of lives and property and should be removed before there is a more gruesome news to publish about auto accidents. Many residents report the old trees have no historic background and they cannot be classed as beautiful trees, since storms have torn away most of their branches. Two lives were snuffed out by the trees this fall and several other persons were maimed in recent accidents. County autoists know their location and avoid them, but other travelers seldom expect to find two trees standing in the center of an important highway. Move them before more lives are lost.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

President Roosevelt inevitably must depend largely upon Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama for his defense of the New Deal against the big business and financial group which declared war on his administration at the recent convention of the National Manufacturers' association and affiliated bodies in New York.

Black's task, as chairman of the senate's labor investigating committee, will be to make out so overwhelming a case of the pernicious influence of business in government as completely to nullify the assaults of business upon Rooseveltian policies.

The Alabamian made a vigorous start on this campaign at the last session of congress, but indications are that this will be looked back on as trifling, in comparison with what is to come.

HERALD SPORTS

ASHVILLE WHIPS SCIOTO-TP TEAM IN 48-17 BATTLE

Inwood Smith Selected For Collier's 'American'

Ohio State Guard One of Three Middlewestern Players Honored; Year Titled "Greatest".

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—Selections for Collier's All-American football team, which is a perpetuation of the All-America founded by Walter Camp, were announced today. The players chosen are:

Ends: Tinsley, Louisiana State; Moscrip, Stanford

Tackles: Smith, Minnesota; Spain, Southern Methodist

Guards: Weller, Princeton; Smith, Ohio State

Center: Lester, Texas Christian

Quarterback: Smith, Alabama

Halfbacks: Berwanger, Chicago; Wilson, Southern Methodist

Fullback: Grayson, Stanford

This team is unique in football history in that it is the first time, since Walter Camp picked his first All-American, that three Smiths—or indeed three players of the same name—have graced the team.

"Greatest Campaign"

In awarding the Walter Camp gold football to these players, the judges declare "the season rolled along through more flaming color and more rapid-fire action than has been seen in any past campaign."

The overpowering strength of the Southwest is acknowledged, but at the same time the judges point out that the history-making football was played in every section of the country.

The completed team has players from nine colleges. Stanford and Southern Methodist are the only teams to land two places. Sectionally, the East has only one player, the mid-West no more than three (counting Ohio State, Chicago and Minnesota); all the rest, except for Stanford's two representatives, are Southern and Southwestern.

Grayson of Stanford is the only man on this year's team whose name appeared on last year's list.

Final selection of the backfield was the most difficult task the judges faced. Pilney of Notre Dame gets credit for the season's finest backfield performance in the game against Ohio. Baugh of Texas Christian is awarded the palm as "the best forward passer of the year." Other runners-up to the four men finally selected were: Goddard of Washington State, Cheshire of U. C. L. A., Beise and Roscoe of Minnesota, Pickle of Mississippi State, Meyer of the Army, Buivid of Marquette, Shakespeare and Pilney of Notre Dame.

Riley Smith Blocker

Riley Smith of Alabama won the quarterback position with a citation which characterized him as "the year's finest blocker." Wilson of Southern Methodist is rated "the best running back of the year," and Berwanger of Chicago is called "the ablest all-around back." As for Grayson, the judges handed him this bouquet: "He has been a star for three years, but 1935 was his big year."

The four backs, grouped together, are termed "among the best that ever found places on an All-America eleven."

The guards were the weakest of the national title in 1927 and again last year, the Giants bring to Detroit a veritable arsenal stocked with gridiron high explosives. Ace passers of the New York team are Harry Newman, former Michigan star, and Ed Danowsky, former Fordham flinger. Among the grid greats on the Giants' roster are Tony Sarausky, Les Borden and Johnny Del Isola, all former Fordhamites; Newman and Bo Munden, ex-Wolverines; Ken Strong and Bill Grant, former New York university stars; Jess Quatse, former Pitt tackle, and Tod Godwin, pass-snatching end.

Power and Punters

Coached by Steve Owen, former star tackle in the pro league, one of the veteran mentors of the circuit, the Giants have all the weapons of a powerful offensive team. A fast crew of ball carriers operates behind a strong line built around Mel Hein, former Washington center, who was voted the best in the proleague last year. Ken Strong recently showed that his toe still is as deadly as ever when, in the last game of the season, he booted a 44-yard field goal. Newman also is a noted kicker.

Against this great array, the Lions throw a team coached by Potsy Clark, Illinois' pre-war quarterback; a team in which Dutch Clark is one of the act backs; quarterbacked by Glenn Presnell, former Nebraska marvel, and with Ace Gutowski at full-back.

Gregg and Young Score 28 Points for Winners; Harrison-Twp Girls Win, Too

Coach Al Kauber's Ashville varsity turned on the heat Thursday evening to blast the Scioto-twp athletes right out of the running for The Herald cup which goes to the team at the top of the heap when the regular season is ended. The Harrison-twp boys, with Gregg and Young scoring at will, piled up a 48-17 margin over the Commercial Point team.

Ashville's girls also won, 25-10, and the reserves were victorious 10 to 10.

Bill Griffith, former C. H. S. coach, was the referee.

Ashville boys started in the early moments of the game to pile up their lead and continued their drive until the game ended. Scioto never threatened.

GIANTS NEAR THIRD NATIONAL TITLE

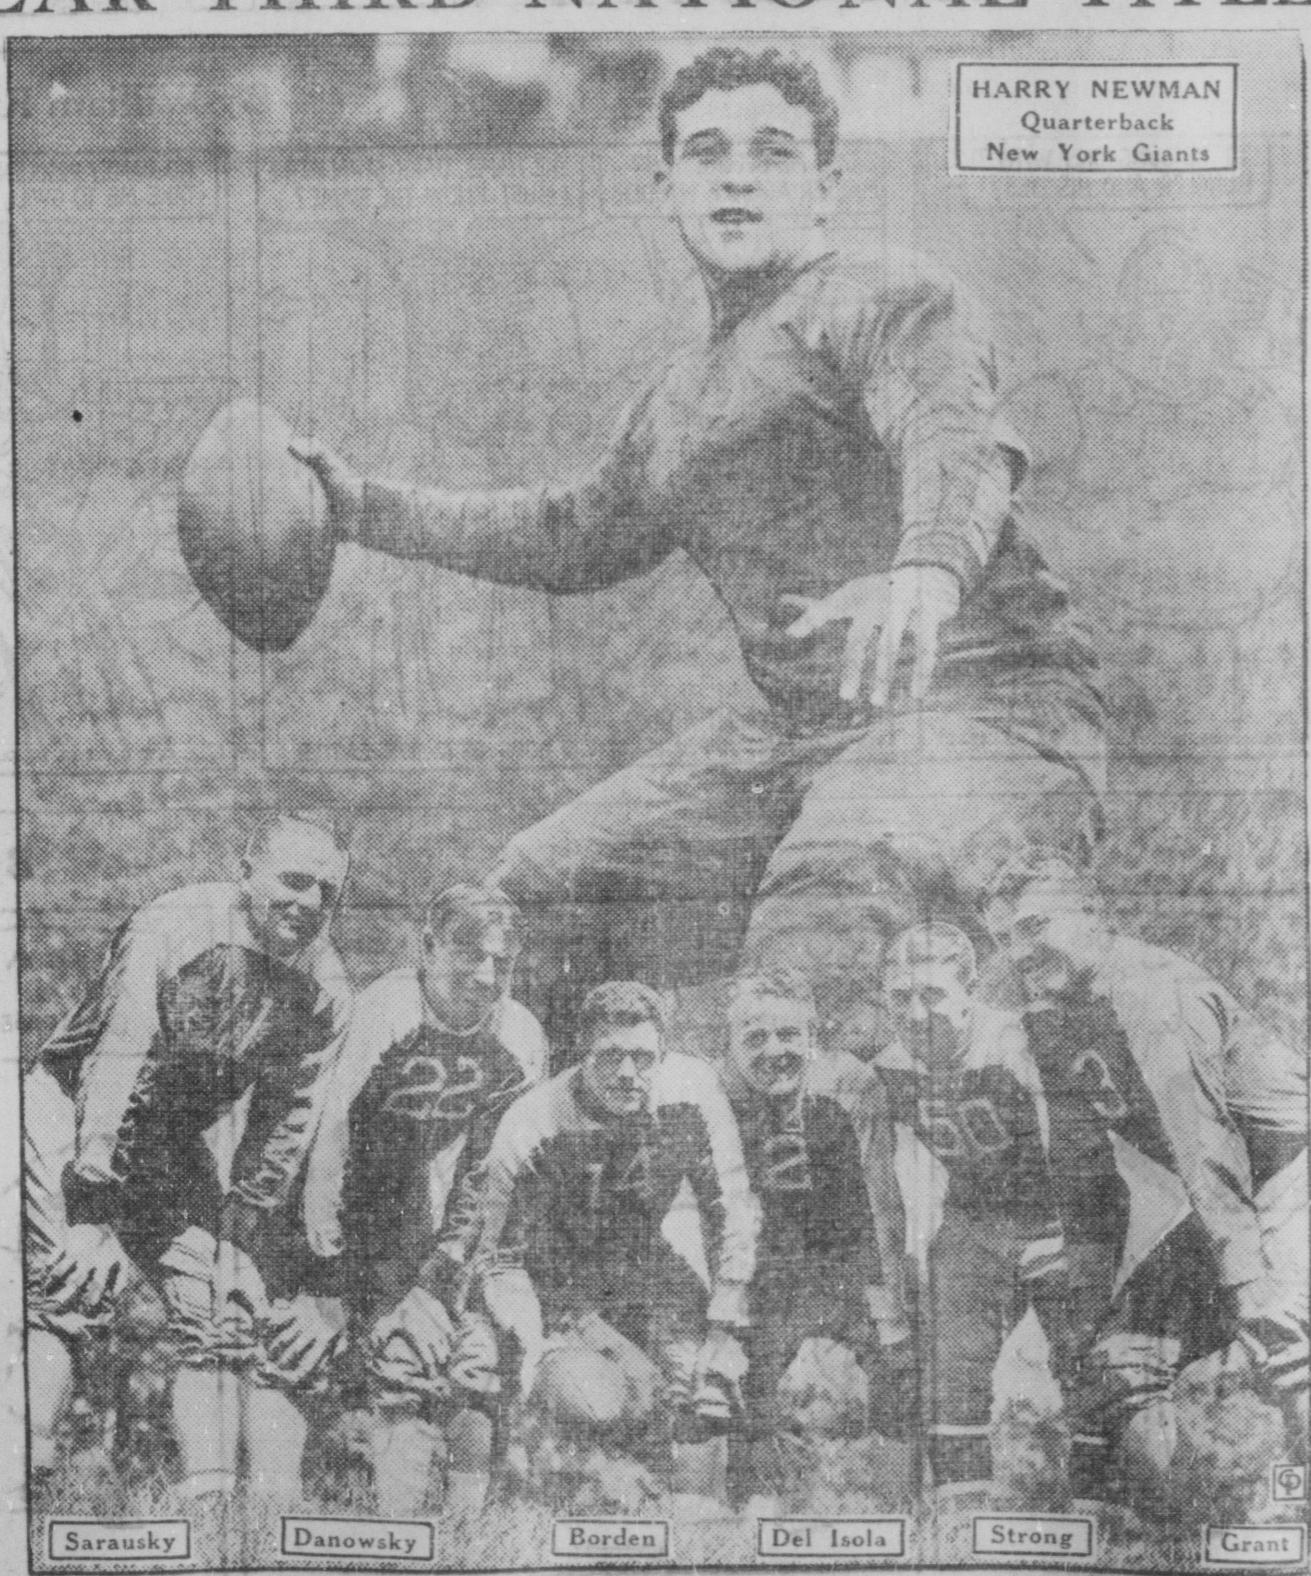

DETROIT, Dec. 13.—Seeking their third national professional football championship, the New York Giants will invade Detroit, Dec. 15, to battle the Detroit Lions, winners in the western division of the pro league.

Winner of the national title in 1927 and again last year, the Giants bring to Detroit a veritable arsenal stocked with gridiron high explosives. Ace passers of the New York team are Harry Newman, former Michigan star, and Ed Danowsky, former Fordham flinger. Among the grid greats on the Giants' roster are Tony Sarausky, Les Borden and Johnny Del Isola, all former Fordhamites; Newman and Bo Munden, ex-Wolverines; Ken Strong and Bill Grant, former New York university stars; Jess Quatse, former Pitt tackle, and Tod Godwin, pass-snatching end.

About This And That In Many Sports

Praise for Scarlet Guard

Congratulations go to Inwood Smith, big tow-headed guard of Francis Schmidt's Buck eleven. He was named on the Collier's All-American, generally recognized with that of the All-American Football Board as near official as possible—Gomer Jones, center, was the second choice of the Collier's selection ***

All-American Board

Here's an All-American that little has been written about in central Ohio, that of the All-American football board—it is picked by Pop Warner, Elmer Layden, Frank Thomas, and a couple of others for Christy Walsh Syndicate—Here it is: ends, Miller of Notre Dame and Moscrip of Stanford; tackles, Lutz of California, and Widseth of Minnesota; guards, Lester of Texas Christian (although he played center) and Wetsel of Southern Methodist; center, Jones of Ohio State; quarterback, Riley Smith of Alabama; halfbacks, Berwanger of Chicago and Shakespeare of Notre Dame; fullback, Grayson of Stanford of the line positions this year. "The season's run of guards was not up to 1934," say the judges, who made their selection of Weller and Smith from a field which also included Montgomery of Princeton, Oech of Minnesota and Wagner of Michigan State.

Tackle play was exceptionally good this year, the judges declare. In the list of players that almost made the team were Orr of Southern Methodist, Widseth of Minnesota, Paterson of Auburn, Lutz of California, Toll and Ritter of Princeton and Erickson of the Army.

Nominations for leading ends included besides the successful Tinsley and Moscrip, only three candidates—Lea of Princeton, Schuler of the Army and Miller of Notre Dame.

Similarly at center, the judges found their choice extremely limited. Only three candidates were possibilities. Lester of Texas Christian is awarded the palm as "the best forward passer of the year." Other runners-up to the four men finally selected were: Goddard of Washington State, Cheshire of U. C. L. A., Beise and Roscoe of Minnesota, Pickle of Mississippi State, Meyer of the Army, Buivid of Marquette, Shakespeare and Pilney of Notre Dame.

Many to See Hi Game

A large crowd is expected to witness the high school-Columbus Academy football game this evening—it'll start about 8:15 with a preliminary hook at 7:30 between the reserve teams. The price for kids has been slashed to 15 cents—for the girls: Governor Davey's son, Martin Jr., is a member of the Academy squad

Quinn Does Best

The deal pulled by Bob Quinn of the Boston Braves has been credited already as being the smartest of the current baseball meeting—He obtained Cuccinello, Lopez, Reis and Benge for Brandt and Moore—Another big deal was that which saw Ernie Orsatti and Jack Rothrock go down the river to Rochester where they'll play under Ray Blades—Either gardener would be mighty welcome in a Columbus uniform ***

RED BIRDS ADD THREE PLAYERS AND LOSE PAIR

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13—Ohio State university's cage quintet opened its season with a victory Thursday evening over George Washington university of the nation's capital. The score was 36-27.

Capt. Warren Whitlinger of the Scarlet team led the way for the scorers with 13 counters.

LOCAL BOWLERS LOSE

Circleville bowlers were unable to hit their stride Thursday evening and lost a 2487-2,599 decision to a Chillicothe team on the CAC alleys.

The scores:

Chillicothe: Long, 508; Blakeman, 591; Loel, 465; Bowers, 597; Hamilton, 438.

Circleville: R. Campbell, 505; Fowler, 494; Barnhart, 505; Lemmon, 459; Watts, 524.

SELL - OUT SEEN FOR LOUIS AND PAULINO BATTLE

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13—The Red Birds today had added three new ball players for their 1936 baseball season. They were Arnold Owen and Gerald Sanders, catchers, and Enos Slaughter, outfielder.

Sale of Brusie O'Grodnowski, catcher, and Stuart Martin, infielder, was also announced. They go to the parent Cardinals and may be back.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—A sell-out was expected tonight as Gotchamites scrambled for vantage points from which to witness the expected "slaughter" of Paulino Walz, 36. The latter has never been floored and New York believes Louis is the man who can do this little trick.

Predictions are:

Louis—A knockout in six rounds.

Paulino—I will win. Louis will not knock me down.

Jimmy Braddock, the champion, will be in the audience.

GENERAL DEADLOCK SEEN

Geneva Calls Plan to End War "Pro-Italian"; Fuel Ban to Be Delayed

GENEVA, Dec. 12—(INS)—Leading a revolt of smaller nations protesting against an alleged Anglo-French "betrayal" of Ethiopia, Poland today balked at following the lead of Great Britain and France in attempting to settle the Italo-Ethiopian controversy.

Supported by Turkey and believed to have the moral support of several other small nations, Poland objected to and prevented discussion of the Anglo-French peace plan by the League of Nations committee of 18, meeting today.

Discuss Embargo Only

Tytus Komarnicki, Polish delegate, demanded that the 18—the "general staff" on application of sanctions against Italy—confine its discussions to the oil embargo, the original subject of the meeting.

This sudden move compelled Premier Pierre Laval of France, prime mover in the current negotiations, to decide to submit the peace plan—called definitely pro-Italian here—to the league council session already scheduled for next Tuesday.

The council meeting originally had been called to discuss the definitely minor Syrian question, but now will be confronted with the grave East African war.

It had been Laval's plan to have the "general staff" discuss the peace plan rather than further sanctions against Italy. Laval apparently will gain a point, however, in that the 18 were expected to delay application of the oil ban. Laval was understood to be planning to try to prolong the meeting.

AAA READY FOR ADVERSE RULING,
WALLACE SAYS

Wallace Has Substitute Plan to Submit if Court Rules Out Taxes

CONTENTS ARE WITHHELD

Committee of Experts Behind Idea; Optimism Reigns in Offices

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(INS)—A wave of optimism spread through the AAA today as officials speculated on the content of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's substitute plan for the AAA in event the Supreme court holds it unconstitutional.

Wallace said the AAA was prepared to offer congress a substitute for the processing tax, the backbone of the crop control program, if the high court holds it invalid. He declined however, to divulge its nature, but said it had been drawn by a "mysterious" committee.

Wallace made it plain, however, that the substitute program was not based on suggestions recently outlined in his Chicago speech, which included a general sales tax.

Call Is Expected

Wallace said he would not present the substitute plan unless congress called for it and he expects such a call if the AAA meets the same fate as the NRA.

He disclosed the "mysterious" committee was comprised of experts from the AAA and the attorney general's office. He would not reveal their names.

The secretary said the cotton control program could operate without the Bankhead act but "it would not be quite so effective."

He estimated the number of cotton growers operating under the act would drop from 90 percent to 80 per cent without the Bankhead act.

Ginning Tax Used

The Bankhead act places a ginning tax on all cotton produced outside of the AAA's cotton production quota.

CONTEST STARTS
TO REDUCE TERM
OF "HILL LASSIE"

WISE, VA., Dec. 12—(INS)—Before an audience of bearded hill countrymen and their gaunt womenfolk which packed Judge H. A. Skeen's tiny courtroom, the judge's distant relative, Attorney A. A. Skeen today began a new fight for Edith Maxwell's freedom.

If Judge Skeen's justice is rendered as swiftly as in the past, the 21-year-old mountain school m'arm, who faces a mandatory 25 year sentence for killing her father, may know her immediate destiny before nightfall.

On "assignment three," of the seven assignments of error noted in the defense motion for a new trial, Attorney Skeen dwelt at length and earnestly. This assignment charges failure by the court to fully instruct the jury concerning the several degrees of murder.

O'NEAL AGAIN IS ELECTED

WAYNE ROGERS ILL

Wayne Rogers, former city patrolman, was reported seriously ill at his home on E. Walnut-st. Thursday.

His request for an advance of $50,000 from the state board of control today will be turned down, members of the board said, because Gov. Martin L. Davey has indicated to senate leaders he will veto the biennial budget bill proposing to restore more than $3,000,000 of the $8,800,000 he vetoed from the original appropriations measure.

No Money Available

The control board late yesterday granted the advance of $50,000 to the welfare department to buy coal, but Rep. Julian Schwerner (D.), Fort Jennings, chairman of the House finance committee and a member of the control board, said the action is to be rescinded inasmuch as there will be no funds available for the advance if the budget bill fails to become law.

DAVEY PROPOSES HUGE GRANT FOR NEEDY OF STATE

Governor Suggests Eight Millions Be Given for Five Months

COUNTIES MUST ACT, TOO

Indicates He Will Veto of Appropriation Measure as Revised

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12—(INS)—Gov. Martin L. Davey today sent to the general assembly his program for solving Ohio's relief crisis, proposing an outright state grant of $82,000,000 for the first five months of 1936 and a program compelling counties to match state expenditures dollar for dollar during the last seven months of the year.

His long-awaited recommendations for taking over relief revealed Davey plans to veto the biennial budget bill unless the legislature keeps the total appropriations within the $80,000,000 limit left after his veto.

"Our only hope of avoiding new taxes," he said, "is to protect the present cash balance (nearly $100,000) in the state treasury and carry on a vigorous economy program throughout 1936."

Lawrence-Co Democrats Join Allen, Jefferson, Pike With Endorsement

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12—(INS)—Democratic state headquarters today announced that the Lawrence Co Democratic organization has endorsed Gov. Martin L. Davey for re-nomination at May primaries.

The resolution, released through state headquarters, was signed by H. A. McCown, chairman of the Lawrence group, and declared that Davey "has efficiently, vigorously and honestly carried out in so far as it was humanly possible, the pledges that he made to the Democratic party and to the people of the state of Ohio."

"Believing that in the face of unfair criticism and unjust attacks by an unscrupulous and unprincipled group of newspapers, Governor Davey stands unimpeached and undaunted, we therefore give to him our renewed pledge of support and promise our hearty and complete co-operation to the end that he may again be nominated to lead our party to victory against our common enemy in November, 1936," the committee declared.

Other county Democratic groups that have endorsed Davey are: Allen, Jefferson and Pike.

Meanwhile Ohio Democratic leaders rumored as possible opponents of Davey for the nomination, remained silent on their plans today.

Lieut. Gov. Harold G. Mosier and Congressman Stephen H. Young, of Cleveland; Secretary of State George S. Myers, Cleveland and William G. Pickrel, Dayton, had nothing to say relative to their plans in the coming election.

UR'S WIDOW ASKS 'FED' HELP IN MURDER CASE

Mrs. Liggett Wires Attorney General; Says Local Authorities Are Unfair

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 12—(INS)—Mrs. Edith Liggett turned to "G" men today, to avenge the assassination of her husband, Walter W. Liggett, editor and publisher of a crusading Minneapolis weekly newspaper.

The courageous widow telephoned Attorney General Homer Cummings last night, urging that the department of justice prosecute the murderer of her husband shot down by two gunmen at the rear of their home Monday evening.

In her plea to Washington Mrs. Liggett charged it would be impossible to obtain a fair or thorough investigation through state or county authorities, all hostile to the crusading editor and his vitriolic pen with which he repeatedly condemned state and county politicians as partners in a huge vice ring.

Federal Aid Last Hope

A federal investigation, the widow said, is her last hope of solving the assassination and bringing the murderers to justice.

Meanwhile, three separate investigations of the murder and the victim's charge of graft and corruption were under way today.

It was also learned that a sweeping private investigation of the alleged political-underworld alliance, financed by unnamed wealthy Minneapolis citizens, has been begun.

Thus the guns of Liggett's assassins may accomplish what his fiery and untiring pen failed to bring about—a searching investigation of his unceasing allegations that a ruthless underworld ring controls Minneapolis and Minnesota.

Mrs. Liggett, who stood shoulder to shoulder with her husband in his efforts to cleanse the city of vice, declared in a ringing voice today:

"I expect to go on until I have made the men who killed Walter pay, and the racketeers of this town, who ordered or hired him killed pay; and to see that politicians who protect gangsters and racketeers and assassins are cleaned out of office."

Blumentfeld Pointed Out

Yesterday she appeared before a police lineup, dramatically pointed out Isadore Blumentfeld, alias Kid Cann, a notorious police character and partner in a liquor distributing firm, as one of the slayers of her husband.

Pointing an untroubled finger at Cann, who stood in the center of the line, she calmly declared:

"That's the man who fired the shots and killed my husband."

Cann, who had been gay and indifferent concerning his detention since a few hours after the slaying Monday, reddened, then paled, gasped:

"You don't know me. You just saw my picture in the papers."

How New Social Security Act Affects You

Provisions of Far-Reaching Law Going into Effect January 1 Are Explained

No. 1—COLLECTION OF MONEY BEGINS

By DALE COX

In the minds of millions of Americans in the last five years the yearning for security supplanted the goal of opportunity, which had been the national stimulus of this country of 150 years. With a great depression cloud of fear, uncertainty—even terror—at their backs, politicians and statesmen turned their attention to the creation of security by statute.

The result was the famous Social Security act passed by the last session of congress and signed into the law of the land by President Roosevelt on Aug. 14.

Historians some day may take that date as a turning point of real importance and significance in the evolution of the American people from a sturdy, self-reliant, individualistic pioneering clan to an older, more cautious people seeking safety or security through collective co-operation. Already many philosophers and students of government speak of the adoption of this act as indicative of the fact that America has come of age. A great and erstwhile bold people have reached back into the experience of older nations and appropriated a form of statute formulated to protect the individual, in so far as possible, from the vicissitudes of life.

Security Guaranteed?

This article, however, is not to concern itself with the philosophy of social security. It does not propose here to take up the question of the right or wrong of it. It does not presume to say whether any government can guarantee its citizens security within the common understanding of that term.

Theories and conflicting opinions aside, the fact is that the United States is embarked upon the most elaborate and far-reaching program of social security any nation ever has undertaken. The New Deal leaders who were responsible for the adoption of this legislation prefer to speak of it as legislation for economic security.

They mean by that the same thing others mean when they use the term social security. For purposes of consistency, therefore, this article will refer to the whole field of security legislation as social security legislation.

A Complex Law

Suffice it to say, briefly, that the Social Security act passed in 1935 is not only one of the most significant laws passed in all American history; it is one of the most complex. It is easy to imagine this act as being more difficult of administration than all other legislation passed by the New Deal. No one as yet knows the extent of administrative difficulties and complexities. There is hardly range in the human mind to comprehend it.

But, beginning Jan. 1, every American employer of eight or more people, with a few exceptions, will begin paying a payroll tax on the wages of his employees with which to set into motion the unemployment insurance section of the social security act. Millions have talked about security for years; beginning Jan. 1 the United States government begins collecting the money with which to establish some modest degree of protection against unemployment.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and waste out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 plus a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 16 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passes with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 16 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask for Doan's Pills. Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 16 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

"Built to Take It"

Says Frank Buck, Famous Explorer

"Trekking" through the jungles has taught me that there is no substitute for ruggedness and dependability in a motor car. For over 20 years Dodge has been famous for these qualities. Everybody knows a Dodge can "take it."

Added to these attributes Dodge has been smashing all economy records—and as for the new 1936 Dodge...there are reports from new Dodge owners all over the country stating they are getting 18 to 24 miles to the gallon of gasoline—and saving up to 20% on oil.

PEDESTRIANS CARRY LIGHTS

PARIS—Pedestrians must carry lights at night in one part of France now. This is a new ruling of the council general of the Seine Inferieure (the County Council of Normandy.) It obliges pedestrians to carry lanterns when walking along unlighted highways. "The thing is NOT to get run over," said M. De Beauvoir introducing the measure, "that is well worth a lantern!"

Some idea of the durability of an Ethiopian doughboy's bare feet may be gathered from the fact that a trooper in the A. E. F. usually wore down a pair of hob-nailed heels and soles in about a month.

LONDON, Dec. 12—(INS)—Japan wants half the American and British navies scuttled.

This, in substance, is what Admiral Osami Nagano told the five-power naval conference in a recital of Japan's demands for a "common upper limit" that is continuing in Clarence house today.

Parity among the three major naval powers should be reached. Admiral Nagano suggested, through all-around reductions to a point below Japan's present total

Not Given Task

Komarnicki, in unexpectedly calling upon Laval to block the Anglo-French peace machinery, also bluntly declared that Poland never had admitted that France and Great Britain had been entrusted with the task of working out the Italo-Ethiopian solution.

It was recalled Poland had objected, when it was proposed France and Britain be given a mandate for this purpose, stating only the league council was empowered to grant such a mandate.

"LOST" MONEY

FOR more than six years treasury officials at Washington have been wondering what became of eighty-five $10,000 bills of the old size. It was the expectation in the summer of 1929, when the paper money was changed in size, that the large notes would be exchanged. Most of them have been swapped, but "old fashioned" currency still turns up occasionally. There's plenty of room for speculation in the "disappearance" of the $10,000 notes, especially when one recalls what happened to Hauptmann as a result of the order to turn in gold certificates.

Any effort to exchange a $10,000 old bill now would attract much more attention among wise handlers of currency than the effort to get rid of the Lindbergh ransom money. Those who are accustomed to handling large bills wouldn't be much more startled by a machine gun than they would by the sight of such a note. One of the most probable results would be the assignment of treasury sleuths to learn where the bill had been and why it wasn't exchanged. These sleuths would start with the suspicion that there was some unlawful motive for keeping the bill under cover some effort to evade a federal law either against smuggling or for tax collection.

The possibilities of ownership of the old $10,000 notes have provided much entertainment for those who were familiar with them. Many of the experts have concluded that about the best course for the present holders is to let the paper remain in vaults until death, so all that the curious may do is guess.

PIRATIC SWINDLE

THERE is a good lesson for gullible investors and would-be heirs in the news that 41 persons are being brought to trial in connection with the perennial Sir Francis Drake swindle.

The story goes that the famous British buccaneer left an estate which has reached the stupendous total of $27,000,000,000, and which is lying in English banks awaiting the establishment of legitimate claims.

Naive Americans, it appears, have

SENATOR NORRIS WON'T RETIRE, WILL BE CANDIDATE FOR REELECTION

WASHINGTON — Senator George Norris will be a candidate for re-election next year.

Under pressure of strong pleas from the President, his Senate colleagues, and thousands of admirers in all parts of the country, the veteran Nebraska liberal has reconsidered his decision to retire from public life. A public announcement to this effect will be made by him shortly.

Since his statement some weeks ago that he would not seek another term, Norris has been deluged with letters and telegrams urging him to carry on. In Nebraska a movement was launched to put his name on the ballot despite his declaration.

Members of the Senate Progressive bloc were particularly active. Senators Wheeler and Nye, en route to the Philippines, wireless him from mid-Pacific.

While Norris has decided to seek another term, he has not as yet made up his mind on what ticket he will run.

In the past he has hewed an independent course regarding national issues and candidates, but personally he has always run as a Republican. Close friends say he no longer wants any association, even nominal, with the GOP.

On the other hand, while Norris's admiration for President Roosevelt is unchanged and he expects to support him for re-election, the Democratic party label holds no attraction.

The LaFollette brothers, Senator Bob and Governor Phil, both very close to Norris, have advised him to follow their example, cast off both old party affiliations and run as a Progressive.

Probably this is what Norris will do.

forked over $1,350,000 to the alleged promoters of the scheme to establish inheritance rights. But, fortunately, the government at last has caught up with the schemers, and an opportunity will be afforded to explain the whole project in open court.

Sir Francis Drake, according to authoritative word from the British Isles, died a relatively poor man. He owned two small farms and a few hundred pounds in money.

Such discouraging facts should dim the ardor of all innocent investors who are prone to fall for the glittering tales of the high-pressure gentry.

Emperor Haile Selassie took his throne to the front with him, a subtle suggestion of a certain lack of confidence in the folks back home.

The five Dionnes have not been in the limelight so much lately and there are apparently reliable reports that they are working on the story of their lives.

Residents or large cities are not likely to obtain the farmer's point of view. Yet farmers represent nearly half the voters of the United States.

A farmer at Greenville, Ill., Howard De Boer, brings the matter to the fore in a letter to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Here are some excerpts from Mr. De Boer's letter:

"How many of those who are now complaining about the corn-hog program ever wrote letters of sympathy when the farmer was selling hogs at 2 cents, corn for 10 and 15 cents and wheat for 35 and 40 cents, with his equipment worn out and no money to buy new equipment without going hopelessly into debt?

"The farmer often works 12 to 16 hours a day and has little time to make speeches on it.

This editorial in the Scranton Times—largest paper in the state outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh—brings the matter to the fore:

"Angered and resenting the 'jungle law' speech of Supreme Court Justice George W. Maxey recently before the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women, the Philadelphia Central Labor union went on record as terming it 'un-American in principle and a breeding of the sowing of the seeds of revolution in the ranks off the American people.'

"One delegate of the C. L. U. attacked in particular Justice Maxey's declaration that efforts of the Roosevelt administration to Deal legislation ought to make speeches on it.

MURDER UPSTAIRS

by ADAM BLISS

READ THIS FIRST:

Lieutenant Kirk Larrabee is investigating the murder of Andrew Darien, a middle-aged bachelor who was stabbed to death with a carving knife as he slept in the boarding house of Alice Penny. Larrabee questions Alice in detail about the seven other boarders as well as Delta Randall, the maid who reported the missing knife the evening before the murder. He learns that Darien was generally disliked and that he possessed a small fortune. Alice tells Grace, her cook, to keep a close eye on the remaining knives in the kitchen. The detective questions Alice again. Alice is amazed when Larrabee tells her she will inherit $200,000 through Darien's will.

[NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY]

CHAPTER 16

I KNEW THAT we couldn't do anything without being watched. Sergeant Burke had been coming in and out of the kitchen all afternoon and stationed outside the back door there was still another officer. We were being watched, all of us. We had been watched all day long.

"I'm sort of unstrung—Mrs. Penny," said Conrad Withers. "I didn't sleep a wink last night and then this morning, I didn't tell Larrabee because I couldn't. Couldn't." He shuddered, and seemed to me more like a small boy than a grown man. His hairkeeper again went to his forehead where beads of perspiration had broken out anew. "I couldn't tell him." His voice sank to a whisper. "Because if I had he would have arrested me for murdering Darien. You know me, Mrs. Penny. Would you think that I killed Darien?"

"I certainly wouldn't, Mr. Withers," I assured him, and I was speaking the truth.

"Thanks, Mrs. Penny. It's a relief to know that someone believes in me. I thought I could count on you. Well, last night, when I came in, I went upstairs. I told Larrabee that, and I also told him that I remained awake the entire night. Didn't get any sleep. I told him that I didn't hear one thing all night long, except you and someone else—Miss Cambridge it must have been—come upstairs shortly after I was in bed. I think it was Miss Cambridge because I heard her door close."

"I nodded. It was Miss Cambridge.

"But that isn't the worst, Mrs. Penny. Far from the worst. I was worried all night, that's why I couldn't sleep. I can't tell you what I was worried about because that only concerns me. Just after 6:30 this morning, I decided I'd go down to see Darien, thinking he might be able to help me out. My—er—troubles were money troubles, and I thought he might—be able to give me a loan. Well, I went down the back stairs to the second floor, and then along the corridor to his door, which was open a crack. I knocked softly because I didn't want to awaken anyone else, and I thought I heard him tell me to come in. I was sure of it. I could swear that I heard a voice say come in. And I'm not usually mistaken about things like that. I've good ears, Mrs. Penny, even if I am near-sighted." He took off his glasses and polished them carefully with his shaking fingers. Once they nearly fell from his hands and I held my breath while he fumbled with them.

"I wasn't wearing my glasses this morning—I'd forgotten them in my sudden decision to go downstairs and see Darien. I wasn't dressed either. I was wearing only my pajamas and bathrobe. Well, I opened the door and went in. Without my glasses, everything is blurred, unless I'm pretty close to an object. Darien was lying in bed, so I went up to the bed, and it was only when I got to it that I saw—the carving knife, and the blood—"

"Mrs. Penny, there was someone in that room, and whoever it was bade me come in, and then hid. Who it was I don't know, but I'd like to find out for whoever it was murdered Andrew Darien!"

"I shook my head. His logic was bad. "I wouldn't say that, Mr. Withers. Why, if you say Mr. Darien had been dead some time when you went into his room at what was the exact time?"

"It was 10 minutes of 7 when I got back to my room. It didn't take me any longer than three minutes to tell me."

"You—are you in any trouble, Mr. Withers?" Thinking I might help him if he were.

He frowned. "Well, I am—to be truthful, Mrs. Penny. I was pretty miserable last night about it—

"Can't you tell me?"

"I can't, because it has nothing to do with all this, and if I say anything about it, I'll only get myself in deeper than I am. I want to avoid that. It's nothing you could help me with, anyway."

"I wasn't so sure, but he was, so he went away, and I finally got down to the kitchen."

What Effect Inbreeding Has on the Human Race

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I SAW last night a remarkable moving picture, "Mutiny on the Bounty," which was, in most respects, absolutely true to the facts as they happened historically.

The most interesting thing to the physician and geneticist, however, was not possible to reproduce in the film. This was the outcome of the remarkable social experiment of Pitcairn Island.

We are all ways being asked whether first cousins should marry or whether intermarriage of near relatives results in good stock. In the island colony we know that the people live up to average in the quality of cattle. Modern times have come far in increasing the same stock, but have any definite proof to date? Let us see what happens with a human colony.

Dr. Clendening writes: "A question from READERS A. N.: 'Would you please advise me as to possible harmful effects of Proban Solfer for husbands every two or three times daily? Some claim it is habit forming, but I find it is not to my husband.'"

Answer: "Proban Solfer contains cocaine. It is not habit forming, but it causes a chemical change in the blood which results in a rapid and prolonged euphoria. My wife does not do very much of it, but I believe that any drug cannot be used habitually in the amounts and frequency you mention."

Question from C. A. C.: "Is it true that the American Indian and the Eskimo are instances where the man and woman live and breed with their own race, leaving out all others? Is this true in the case of the Indians?"

Answer: "It is true that the Indians do not intermarry with other races, but they do not do very much of it. I believe that any drug cannot be used habitually in the amounts and frequency you mention."

When nations apply "sanctions"—that is, cut off trade with another nation—there may be economic hardship on all sides.

The same may be true of communities and individuals. How few of us stop to think when we trade unnecessarily away from home, that we are in a small way applying "sanctions" against our own merchants and neighbors!

It is a good thing to trade at home whenever possible. It helps to keep local wealth circulating for local good. Let us keep this in mind and do our proper part as citizens of this community. We shall all benefit as a result.

GOVERNOR'S SON

Youth is Sub; Three of Last Year's Veterans Have Spots in Lineup

A veteran aggregation of cagers big, fast and experienced, represents Columbus Academy, coming here Friday evening to confront Coach Jack Landrum's Red and Black varsity on the C. A. C. court.

Academy is led by Carmichael, splendid forward, who caged 11 points in Bill Hunt's team's 28-16 victory over Holy Family Tuesday afternoon. This boy is rash. He played last year in Academy's 21-14 victory over the Tigers.

Others appearing against the local quintet who saw service last year include Draudt, brother of Millard Draudt, classmate of Foster Bates at Lake Forest and Princeton, at center, and Hoffman at guard.

Davey's Son, Too.

Governor Martin L. Davey's son, Martin Jr., is a substitute member of the team. He played quarterback on the football team.

Academy has a strong outfit but will meet another fast aggregation in the Tigers. Nelson, Jenkins and Andrews are set at three positions. Whether Styers starts depends on how much he has shown in practice this week. It will be either Henry or Freiley at guard with the former getting the call if he is not working. He adds a lot to the Tigers' offensively and defensively.

The reserve teams of the two schools will meet in the preliminary.

Thornton, former Denison U. athlete, will be the referee.

The probable lineups:

Circleville	Academy
Styers	F. Carmichael
Andrews	F. Fraas
Melson	C. Draudt
Jenkins	G. Hoffman
Freiley	G. Winger

Time of preliminary: 7:30.

GEORGE NICHOLS WINS

AKRON, Dec. 12—(INS)—George Nichols, of Buffalo, N. Y., former holder of the light heavyweight championship of the National Boxing Association, added another victory to his list today.

Nichols scored a knockout over Mickey Dugan, of Cleveland, in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-rounders on a policeman's benefit show here last night. In the eight-round semi-final, George Mull, Akron lightweight, won a decision over Oscar Schmeling, of Cleveland.

Cleveland Gets Allen

A few of the deals on fire and completed at Chicago:

Jenny Allen from New York to Cleveland for Monte Pearson and Steve Sundra—A New York advantage because Allen is plenty tough to get along with—

White Sox to buy Sam West from St. Louis—

BROOKLYN AND BOSTON TRADE

Lopez, Benge, Cuccinello,
Reis Go for Brandt, Moore

CHICAGO, Dec. 12—(INS)—The Boston Braves traded Pitcher Ed Brandt and Randy Moore, outfielder, to the Brooklyn club, another National League club, in exchange for four players. The four released by Brooklyn to Boston were Al Lopez, Ray Benge, Tony Cuccinello and Bobby Reis, infielders.

There was no cash involved in the trade, it was announced.

The deal brought forth considerable surprise at the national and American league meeting here.

Lopez was the Dodgers' star catcher and Benge a consistent pitcher. Cuccinello is a veteran player.

Brandt was one of the best pitchers ever developed by the Braves.

Ashville and Scioto Meet In Big Game

Commercial Point Boys Hope
to Knock Off Kauber's
Unbeaten Team

One of the big games of the current county cage season is scheduled this evening when Ashville and Scioto-twp tangle on the former court.

The girls of the two schools will also meet in a game that is a "natural." Usually the Ashville-Scioto girls game has a bearing on a championship but this year both are defeated.

The Ashville boys have yet to taste the bitter morsels of a beaten while Scioto has been dropped, in a close game by Muhlenberg-twp. The Commercial Point lads, however, are capable of knocking off almost anyone just as they did New Holland in the county tournament last year.

The starting lineups will probably be:

Ashville Scioto-twp

Gray F. Williams

Gregg F. Finch

Young C. Wilson

Steinbrook G. Neal

Millar G. Rasor

Other games on the county schedule this week include: Muhlenberg at Deer Creek. Pickaway at Walnut. Monroe at New Holland. Darby at Washington. Perry at Jackson.

ODDS FOR LOUIS ARE 2½ TO 1 THAT JOE LAND KAYO

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(INS)—The box-office magic of Joe Louis' name has practically assured a sell-out house at Madison Square garden tomorrow night, when the Brown Bomber meets Paulino Uzeudun, according to Mike Jacobs, who is prompting the fight.

A capacity crowd would fill the garden for the first time for a professional bout since Primo Carnera fought Ernie Schaaf there early in 1933.

Odds of about 5 to 1 are being quoted for the Detroit fighter to win, and 2½ to 1 the basque wood-chopper won't last the route—25 rounds.

Though everyone else connected with the fight game seems to think it's only a question of "how long will Paulino last," the Spaniard himself has no such idea. He points out that he didn't come all the way from Spain to take a licking. On the contrary, he will say, take keen delight in demonstrating how easy it is for an old veteran like himself to put the Detroit upstart in his place.

In the Louis camp at Pompton Lakes, N. J., every one is certain the young negro will knock the basque out in short order. Jack Blackburn, Louis' trainer, can hardly wait to see the durable Spaniard on the floor, a sight which fight followers have yet to see.

Both fighters will rest today having tapered off in light workouts yesterday. Louis will leave Pompton Lakes by motor about noon tomorrow, and Uzeudun will depart from Orangeburg, where he has been working out, about the same time.

Everett Hoocox, manager of the Groce elevator in New Holland, severed his personal farming interests this week with a public auction. He plans to give his entire time to the grain, coal and feed business. A modern hammermill will soon be added to the elevator as a service to farmers of the vicinity.

75 PRIVATE EMPLOYERS USE NATIONAL SERVICE

During the last three months, 75 private employers have used the service offered by the local NRS offices, according to a report issued Thursday morning by J. T. Shea, manager. The report, Mr. Shea explained, shows a marked increase in comparison with previous three-month periods.

Moderate Week-end
Moderate temperatures and cloudy skies are predicted for the week-end. Light rain or snow was forecast for Thursday night.

AGENT REPORTS FARM BUREAU ACTIVITY

11,108 PERSONAL CALLS RECORDED AT LOCAL OFFICE

Over 20,000 Contacts Made During Year; 475 Members of Organization

More than 20,000 contacts with Pickaway countians were made during the year ending Dec. 1 by the Farm Bureau organization, according to the annual report of F. K. Blair, county extension agent.

The report includes visits made through parent-teachers, farmers' institutes, farm organization meetings and other groups that took part in the extension program.

495 Visits on Farms

Personal calls made at the headquarters of the county agent totalled 11,108, telephone calls, 2,032. The county agent made 495 on visits and 24 achievement programs were held with an attendance of 2,022. Two hundred and sixty-two other meetings with a total attendance of 5,877 persons were held by the agent. Leaders conducted more than 300 meetings with an attendance of approximately 3,000. Two hundred and fifty-six leaders assisted in carrying out the program.

The schedules were planned in January and 10 major projects were selected to receive special attention. These included the AAA organizations and cooperatives, 4-H club work, institutes, poultry, dairy, livestock, crop, soil and fertilizer and vegetable gardens.

475 Are Members

In the organization branch the report shows a membership of 475 persons in the Farm Bureau. An active educational program is conducted among the members aiding in better livestock production, crop rotation and soil improvement. Commodities such as feeds, fertilizers, insurance, livestock and other farm commodities are handled through the Service co.

The total volume of business handled through the organization including its livestock, grain and other services amounted to $755,597.19, the report reveals.

Under the AAA program $427,562 has been paid to contract signers in Pickaway-co during 1935. This amount included delayed payments on the 1935 contracts. About 1,700 contract signers were involved in these payments. Corn and hog contracts were signed by 782 producers. The contracts represented a total of 40,000 acres of land and 63,317 head of hogs. The total acres retired from production was 7,502 and the hog reduction 8,332 head.

The 830 wheat contracts were still in force from the 1933 signup involving 39,000 acres of land with a reduction of 4,000 acres. Sixty leaders aided in the administration and supervision of the county AAA program.

Aided by Council

The 4-H club program is under the direction of Miss Mary Shortridge, club leader, and Mr. Blair. The work was carried on in conjunction with the 4-H club council, composed of five club leaders and two club officers. Thirty-eight leader and assistants organized clubs including 159 boys and 286 girls. Twenty-five exhibits were entered in the Ohio State fair and 350 children took part in the Pumpkin Show displays.

Statistics on the Baby Beef show profits ranging from $9 to $32 were realized on the calves fed and sold by members.

The poultry extension program is conducted through a group of 50 producers and two county-wide meetings are held each year for the discussion of poultry practices.

One of the most interesting of the reports is that of the Pickaway-co Livestock Assn. This organization shipped 11,452,000 pounds of livestock during the year, representing a total value of $441,913. Twenty-six decks of feeder cattle were distributed to producers of the county.

Many Soil Samples

More than 50 samples of soil were tested for Pickaway-co farmers by the soils laboratory at Ohio State university. Farmers bought 811 tons of fertilizer through the Farm Bureau Service company.

The lengthy report also contains crop information and numerous other brief outlines of other activities of the organization.

MUSHROOMS IN SNOW

MUNICH — Harvesting their mushrooms in the middle of a fall snow was the unique experience of peasants of Furth, (Central Bavaria) this year. The two-inch snowy blanket caused no injuries to the mushrooms. In fact this year's bumper crop is the best in a decade, and wagon-loads of the mushrooms are waiting freightage at the Furth railway station, perfectly preserved by their unprecedented covering of icy particles.

New Social Security Act

Explanation of Act Effective January 1
No. 2—OLD AGE PENSIONS

By DALE COX

THE FIRST question arising in most people's minds about the new social security program is the identity of the people who will pay for it.

You and I, everyone, will help pay the cost of the social security offered by this government to its people under the social security act.

What then are the important facts about the Social Security act? How does it affect each of us? What does it offer? What is it to cost us? How are the benefits to be paid? How soon does it begin to offer us security?

The Social Security act is divided into three sections, and to understand it properly it is well to study each section separately.

Federal Aid

The first section deals with immediate aid to be given by the federal government to the various states now attempting to aid their own citizens through old age pensions, unemployment insurance, child health work and other forms of public welfare. This aid the government offers to give immediately, in order to provide something for the people now in need pending such time as the other sections of the act shall begin to operate.

The outstanding feature of this section of the act is the offer of the federal government to match dollar for dollar up to $15 per month paid out by the various states in old age pensions.

The federal government will match dollar for dollar up to $15 per month paid out by the various states in old age pensions.

Social Security act is $30 per month.

The modesty of that figure amuses the adherents of the Townsend old age pension plan, which advocates the payment of $200 per month to all people over 65 years of age. Consequently, a large group of old people seeking old age pensions are anything but pleased over the outlook of receiving a paltry $1 per day.

Effectiveness Restricted

Furthermore, the effectiveness of this first section of the Social Security act has been definitely limited by the fact that many states having old age pension acts cannot qualify for the federal aid. The Social Security act lays down a very definite set of requirements which all state old age pension laws must meet before those states can receive the maximum of $15 per month from the federal government for each old age pensioner. Inasmuch as it has been difficult to call state legislatures into special session to change their old age pension acts to conform to the federal requirements, little federal aid is as yet going to old age pensioners.

Thus for the time being, social security for the old people, in so far as the federal government is concerned, is locked in the tangle of state legislatures and held in abeyance between Washington and the various state capitals.

The fact is that under the present social security law no one can qualify for an old age pension before 1942 unless he is on the pension roll of a state.

DEBATE GROWING OVER CLEMENCY FOR CRIMINAL, 28

CLEVELAND—Should Cleveland's notorious "smoked glasses bandit," who some years ago terrorized this city with a long series of crimes, be granted executive clemency, or should he be compelled to serve out at least this minimum sentence in Ohio Penitentiary?

This is a question being considered today by many prominent Ohioans, including Gov. Martin L. Davey and other state officials, as well as persons of high official capacities, as the result of a campaign being directed by the young bandit, now Convict No. 57,419 in the state prison, from behind the prison walls.

Association Opposed

Vigorously opposing executive clemency is the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice. So important does this organization consider the convict's case that its recent monthly report, issued under the direction of Leona Marie Esch, operating director, is devoted entirely to this single subject.

The convict is Joseph (Specs) Russell, alias Russo, alias Roselli, sentenced by a Cleveland judge in 1927 to serve a term of 55 years on two charges of robbery and one charge of housebreaking and larceny. This sentence, however, has been reduced by provisions of the Ackerman Indeterminate Law and the Gillen Good Conduct Law.

As a result, Russell will be eligible for parole after serving 13½ years, or one-fourth the judicial minimum sentence. Russell has been in the penitentiary more than eight years to date. The Ackerman Law nullified 34 years of the sentence, and the Gillen Law provided a further deduction of 7½ years.

The association's report on the Russell case gives its complete history, going back as far as his birth in Curwensville, Pa., May 17, 1907, the son of immigrant Italians.

NATION WARNED OF SHORTAGE OF NEEDS FOR WAR

U. S. Would Need Substitutes for 10 Essentials in Case of Blockade

NEW YORK — If a strangling war should strike the United States, blocking the nation's ports, the country would lack ten essential war materials, warning was given in a report to the American Chemical Society.

These materials were listed by H. A. Kuhn, executive officer of the Chicago Chemical Welfare Procurement District, as antimony, chromium, manganese, mercury, mica, nickel, rubber, tin, tungsten and wool.

In the emergency of a blockade, Kuhn said after an exhaustive survey of preparedness needs, chemists would have to develop new alloys and suitable substitutes for rubber, wool and other indispensable commodities.

"Due to the small size of our peace time army and lack of war reserves, it would be necessary to mobilize our industry for war before we could mobilize our manpower," he said.

"Although we are probably more self-sufficient in regard to raw materials needed by industry than any other nation, we still would lack an adequate supply of essential items in the event of a blockade of our shores."

"In peace time we import still other items which are needed in war. Among these are camphor, coconut shells, coffee, hides, iodine, jute, malay fiber, nux vomica, opium, shellac, silk, sisal and sugar."

"Although we have substitutes for some of these items, important for civilian and military use, getting an adequate supply of them will be primarily the job of the chemist and of the chemical industry."

"Such developments as synthetic camphor, rubber, benzol, toluol, naphthalene, ethyl alcohol, methanol, phenol, improved rayon, a domestic supply of iodine, a non-mercurial fulminate, and new alloys have added to our national defense."

"The chemist and the chemical industry would be the backbone of our army in a major war."

Accident, She Says

FUTURE OF AAA SURE IF LEFT TO FARM VOTE

Results of various referenda that have been taken to decide the attitude of farmers toward continued agricultural adjustment leave no doubt concerning the overwhelming desire for the continuation of the program, according to V. R. Wertz, writing in the December issue of the Ohio Farm Bureau News.

Mr. Wertz, who is professor of Rural Economics at the Ohio State University, pointed out that in the national wheat referendum, 87 per cent of the votes cast were in favor of continuing the program, 86 per cent of the corn-hog vote favored continuation, 94 per cent of the cigar leaf tobacco vote was in the affirmative, and 89 per cent of those voting on the cotton referendum were in favor of continuation.

"It is impossible for any one to say just why farmers have voted so strongly to continue the AAA program," said Professor Wertz, "but it is probable that the two dominant reasons were: First, self-interest, the thought on the part of the voter that he would be able to make more money under an adjustment program than under the old 'let-alone' system; and second, a firmer conviction than ever before that American agriculture faces broad economic problems which cannot be solved successfully by each of six million farmers acting independently of each other."

LOST EATING BET

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Arthur Campbell had to pay for five quarts of ice cream as well as a $5 wager because he overestimated his own ability. Having won the malted milk drinking championship of the University of Utah campus, Campbell bet $5 he could eat six quarts of ice cream. During the fifth quart, he paled suddenly and fled.

OPEN LETTERS

TO HEALTH OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: The task you have faced this fall in combating disease, especially diphtheria, is a difficult one and has demanded much time, energy and risk to yourselves and your families. You have succeeded in putting down the threat of epidemic every time one has threatened. I wish it were in my power to force parents and guardians of persons who show symptoms of disease to report the cases immediately to their family physicians so they can be cared for as early as possible.

CIRCUITEER

TO CLARK HUNSICKER

ASSEMBLYMAN: I believe it is not necessary for me to tell you that your constituents in Pickaway-co believe you are doing a good job. They watch every vote you register, and if it is as they think it should be they will tell you; if you do a lot contrary to their belief they also tell you. You have been on the job and always in the interest of the persons who sent you to the state house.

CIRCUITEER

TO STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT: How much longer are the two snags, called Twin Elms, at South Bloomfield to be left in the center of Route 23, endangering lives? The trees have taken their toll of lives and property and should be removed before there is a more gruesome news to publish about auto accidents. Many residents report the old trees have no historic background and they cannot be classed as beautiful trees, since storms have torn away most of their branches. Two lives were snuffed out by the trees this fall and several other persons were maimed in recent accidents. County autoists know their location and avoid them, but other travelers seldom expect to find two trees standing in the center of an important highway. Move them before more lives are lost.

CIRCUITEER

TO LAW-ENFORCERS

OFFICIALS: In your hands rest one of the greatest responsibilities presiding officers in Ohio courts have ever faced, that of coping with persons who assist on driving automobiles while intoxicated. If there was ever one crime that merited grave punishment, it's that of mixing liquor and gasoline. At all times since jurisdiction has been placed in your hands, you have acted for the best interests of the people you represent. I believe a drunken driver is as dangerous to humanity as an armed bandit. A person convicted of driving when drunk should be made to suffer. I pray you to continue your rigid enforcement of the law. Do not permit such menaces to travel our public highways.

CIRCUITEER

TO DR. H. D. JACKSON

MEDICO-SOLDIER: Your election as president of the Ohio National Guard association brings honor to Pickaway-co. Truly, it is "just another job" for you, but there is a lot of honor connected with it. You are looked up to by each of the 700 national guard officers over whom you serve. Your selection adds to honors voted to Frank Lynch, by the bottlers association; Clark Will, by the bankers association; Howard Orr, by the canners association; Walter Marion, by the gardeners association; and several others who have brought renown to our city and county.

CIRCUITEER

TO CITIZENS

DEAR FRIENDS: What woul the Christmas season be to the more unfortunate persons in Circleville if it were not for some of the good-hearted citizens? Christmas in the needy homes is really made a holiday by the work and donations of the fire department, Benevolent society and the various civic clubs and church societies. These organizations deserve all the credit and praise that can be given them. Individuals in the community can aid by notifying these clubs of their willingness to donate money, food, or clothing.

CIRCUITEER

TO DUSTY MILLER

HUMORIST: Each Circleville business or professional man or woman who heard your address Tuesday evening owes you felicitations. You did more to boost their morale in the short time you talked than any one thing I can recall. Before you started they sat at their places discussing the usual trends of business and the attendant increase brought by the holiday season; they talked of many things, some of them unpleasant, but I wish to tell you there was a different expression on the face of every one of you listeners when you finished. I have heard you four times and can remember several of the same jokes in each talk, but I laughed just as loud the fourth time as the first. There should be a lot more "ambassadors" like you, Dusty Miller.

CIRCUITEER

TO RINGGOLD LADIES

FOLK—Your gesture in meeting Thursday day for an all-day sewing to make comforts for the Rife family, whose property was destroyed by fire, is indeed a splendid one. The Rifes are fine neighbors and you are proving yourselves of the same type by aiding them in their distress. Good feeling such as this exists in nearly every Pickaway-co community, so that of your group is in keeping with the fine tradition established by the county's rural residents. I congratulate you.

CIRCUITEER

Haile Selassie may be a great chap in his way, but we'll never be able to take him very seriously until he gets rid of those circus clothes and his umbrella.

Poor old Ludendorff still thinks "war is the highest expression of the national will." Sad, but true, you simply can't teach some people new tricks.

That's the way big business feels about it.

Such is the case, it clearly is the new master's view that the big business is an attack on poor people in an usual manner to lead it.

For one thing, he has the temperament. He is both an able and a good orator. Some will say he is wise. If not, he can change him and lead them into danger, and get seemingly damaging admissions, while almost all of them are with him. That's his own self, while caustic (not to say insulting), always is cool.

PLenty of AMMUNITION

Another point, Hugo has plenty of ammunition. As previously remarked, he made an efficient start with his inquiry before congress last adjourned.

What he found out at that time investigators have been poking into ever since—and they do say that he has a lot more embarrassing questions to ask.

The activities of big business in Washington can be represented in either one of two ways:

1. It can be represented as protection of its legitimate interests.

2. It can be represented as protection of its usurers upon Roosevelt's policies.

The Alabamian made a vigorous start on this campaign in the last session of congress, but indications are that this will be looked back on as trifling in comparison with what is to come.

IMPLACABLE

The assumption is that the president would have preferred to protect business men with his "breathing spell" if he could. The New York gathering's declar-

MURDER UPSTAIRS

BY ADAM BLISS

READ THIS FIRST:

Lieutenant Kirk Larrabee is investigating the murder of Andrew Darien, a middle-aged bachelor who was stabbed to death with a carving knife as he slept in the boarding house of Alice Penny. Larrabee questions Alice in detail about the seven other boarders as well as Delta Radlett, the maid who reported the missing knife the evening before the murder. He learns that Darien was generally disliked and that he possessed small fortune. Alice tells Grace, her cook, to keep a close eye on the remaining knives in the kitchen. The detective questions Alice again. Alice is amazed when Larrabee tells her she will inherit $200,000 through Darien's will. Conrad Withers tells Alice he discovered Darien's death before it became generally known.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 17

DINNER WASN'T a pleasant meal for any of us. I had asked Kirk Larrabee to be a guest, so he was sitting in Mr. Darien's place at the foot of the table opposite me, with Miss Cambridge on his left, and Janet on his right. Next to Miss Cambridge was Mr. Withers, and next to him, Lucy, and then me. On my left was Mr. Talbot, then Mrs. Starmont, for she had taken my advice and come down, and beside her Martin Hemingway. Janet was at Mr. Hemingway's left.

That's the way we always sit, so it was the same except for Lieutenant Larrabee in Mr. Darien's place.

I think everybody was afraid there would be a rest to be carved, so when the ham came onto the table already cut in neat slices, it was a definite relief.

Larry tried to start some light conversation, but it fell flat, so after a few futile efforts of talking about the weather, the new low rates to Europe, and Gertrude Atherton's autobiography, she subsided, and spent the rest of the meal trying to eat as the rest of us were doing. Trying, I say, because none of us was making much headway, except Marcella Cambridge. Lucy and I said afterwards that nothing could ever happen that would take away her appetite.

Grace and Delta and I had been looking to see how my ham and sweet potatoes were being taken. Kirk Larrabee didn't miss anything either. I found out later. He knew to the mouthful almost everything that was eaten Tuesday night.

Mrs. Starmont hardly made any pretense of eating. She didn't once pick up her fork, but she did have five cups of coffee, fast as Delta could pour them. I felt sorry for her, because I knew she hadn't had a thing all day. She was not looking much better, for her eyes were red, and her face wasn't as pretty as it usually was, regardless of the heavy powder she had on. But she had put on some perfume.

Larry ate a little, not much, and drank more coffee than was good for her. As a matter of fact so did I. I had four cups myself, and saw myself spending a bilious, sleepless night.

Janet picked at her food lackadaisically. She was at least trying to eat, poor child, but Delta took almost the entire plate back into the kitchen when she cleared the dishes. The soundse under Janet's eyes seemed more pronounced. Once her eyes met mine, and I saw an appeal in them, a terror-like appeal. To tell the truth her harpion had gone out my fourth floor window and now must be lying somewhere on the front. Delta and Grace and I were in the back. I hadn't gone to the front door until 20 minutes of eight to take off the night latch. It was still turned as I had left it after Mr. Withers had come in at 1 the night before. Usually I go and get the morning papers before 20 minutes of 8, but I hadn't this morning. Something in the kitchen had prevented me.

But the voice. Mr. Withers being sure about having heard it.

Unless . . .

I'm afraid at the moment the discovery came into my head, I almost gave myself away by looking too hard at Martin Hemingway. He wasn't paying any attention to me, luckily, so it wasn't so bad. Kirk Larrabee was, and he said afterwards that I appeared as if I had suddenly seen a great, bright light.

Mr. Hemingway wasn't as eager as usual about his dinner, and when a big husky man isn't hungry, there must be a reason for it. I thought I knew the reason, and I was furious at myself for not thinking of it before. How I could have missed such a simple, ordinary thing. I don't know, except that the ordinary simple things are such a habit that you don't consider them.

The fact is that I had forgotten that door in the closet of Mr. Darien's room that opens into the closet of Martin Hemingway's room. Forgotten it as completely as if it had never existed. What's more I hadn't thought of it for three or four years. Certainly I had overlooked it when Mr. Hemingway took his room two years ago. I hadn't even mentioned the door to him, but he must have found it for himself. It's way back in the closet, and seems to be part of the paneling, but it isn't. A little narrow door, and when I went 462 Gardner street eight years ago, I had bolts put on both sides of the door.

I remember that when Mr. Darien had taken his room five years ago, he had noticed the door, and asked me about it. Mr. Hemingway never asked me about the door, and I forgot it when I was showing him the room. The last time I had been in Mr. Darien's closet, his clothes were hanging over the door, and the last time I had been in Mr. Hemingway's closet, his clothes had been hanging over the door. Of course I hadn't thought of the door consciously either time, but I recalled now the clothes concealing the door.

If Mr. Hemingway knew about the door, which he must, since he had lived in his room for two years, and if some way he had been able to slip the bolt on Andrew Darien's side—why, all the opportunity for murder was there as clear as daylight. The question of the voice. Mr. Withers heard was answered.

The police must know about the bolt by this time, for they had been searching the rooms thoroughly all afternoon. How had they found the bolt on Mr. Darien's door? Open or closed? I resolved to ask Lieutenant Larrabee as soon as I could after dinner. If it was closed as usual, and if Martin Hemingway had murdered Andrew Darien, then Mr. Hemingway must have pushed it in from Mr. Darien's side, and must have left Darien's room by the door into the hall . . . if . . .

Murder is an awful thing, and although I didn't like Mr. Hemingway, I hated to think of him as Mr. Darien's murderer.

Murderer. I'd been thinking murderer, and definitely considering that Mr. Darien had been killed by a man. Lucy was thinking of the person who killed Mr. Darien as a murderer. Mrs. Starmont. Murderer. Murderess. Both of them ugly, hideous words. Yet I hated to think that one of the women in the house might have murdered Mr. Darien. Marcella Cambridge, Janet Bell, Lucy, Mrs. Starmont, Grace, Delta or myself. Three men, Conrad Withers, Martin Hemingway and Robert Talbot.

I stayed around the kitchen while Delta and Grace were doing the dishes, and after Delta dried the six sharp knives I took them and put them in a clean bath towel. The corners of my peculiar long handle I fastened down with safety pins.

Grace didn't say anything while I was making the bundle, but Delta did. She hadn't completely overcome her fright of this morning.

"Do you think, Mrs. Penny—that we're all going to be murdered in our beds—like poor Mr. Darien?"

"We're not tonight if I can help it, Delta—for I'm going to take the knives upstairs, and I'm going to sleep them up with me."

"I don't want to sleep alone, Mrs. Penny," she whimpered.

Grace said she didn't need to sleep alone. They'd sleep together in Grace's room. Delta brightened a little after that, and the two of them started up the back stairs together.

Elliot Mason broke a small screen in "Every Night at Eight," the Walter Wanger-Paramount musical comedy now showing at the Clifton Theatre with George Raft, Alice Faye, Frances Langford and Patsy Kelly.

Directed by Raoul Walsh, the film pictures the hectic adventures of a feminine singing trio who fight their way from amateur tryouts to national radio fame. Frances Langford is the intemperate comedian, thought that he was standing near Kermit Maynard, the star. Unable to see in the dark, he reached out to touch the other man, and his hand encountered fur.

"Why the fur coat and what are you shaking about?" the comic asked.

HIS HORSESHOE UNLUCKY

LISBON, O.—John Mangus, village blacksmith, believed that horseshoes are lucky until he decided to nail a horseshoe over the entrance to his shop. It fell as he was nailing it up, striking him on the head. Mangus is nursing a deep gash.

Ace passers of the New York team are Harry Newman, former Michigan star, and Ed Danowsky, former Fordham flinger. About This And That In Many Sports

Praise for Scarlet Guard

Congratulations go to Inwood Smith, big tow-headed guard of Francis Schmidt's Buck eleven—He was named on the Collier's All-American, generally recognized with that of the All-American Football Board as near official as possible—Gomer Jones, center, was the second choice of the Collier's selection ***

All-American Board

Here's an All-American that little has been written about in central Ohio, that of the All-American football board—it is picked by Pop Warner, Elmer Layden, Frank Thomas, and a couple of others for Christy Walsh Syndicate—Here it is: ends, Miller of Notre Dame and Moscrip of Stanford; tackles, Lutz of California, and Welsch of Minnesota; guards, Lester of Texas Christian (although he played center) and Welsch of Southern Methodist; center, Jones of Ohio State; quarterback, Riley Smith of Alabama; halfbacks, Bewanger of Chicago and Shakespeare of Notre Dame; fullback, Grayson of Stanford; ***

Tackle play was exceptionally good this year, the judges declare. In the list of players that almost made the team were Orr of Southern Methodist, Welsch of Minnesota, Paterson, Lutz of Auburn, Lutz of California, Toll and Ritter of Princeton and Erickson of the Army.

Nominations for leading ends included besides the successful Tinsley and Moscrip, only three candidates—Lea of Princeton, Schuler of the Army and Miller of Notre Dame.

Similarly at center, the judges found their choices extremely limited. Only three candidates were possibilities. Lester of Texas Christian, Jones of Ohio State and Gilbert of Auburn. Lester is credited with giving added pace to his magnificent performance of the previous year.

Quinn Does Best

The deal pulled by Bob Quinn of the Boston Braves has been credited already as being the smartest of the current baseball meeting—He obtained Cuccinello, Lopez, Reis and Bengo for Brandt and Moore—Another big deal was that which saw Ernie Orsatti and Jack Rothrock go down the river to Rochester where they'll play under Ray Blades—Either gardener would be mighty welcome in a Columbus uniform ***
